Burton Clarke Dies In 9-Story Plunge From Roof of Club

Shouts Warning to Pedestrians; Body Goes Through Top of Auto; Witness Tells of Fall.

FATAL LEAP LAID TO HIS ILL HEALTH

"Tell Him To Look Out," Last Words of Victim; Car Is Badly Damaged.

Burton Clarke, 60, member of a prominent family, plunged nine stories to his death from the roof of the Atlanta Athletic Club early last night after shouting warnings to a pedestrian in the street below.

The body crashed through the canvas top of a roadster parked on Cone street, almost at the same moment a pedestrian walked by the car.

Clarke was a brother of Logan Clarke, well-known insurance executive. He had suffered a nervous breakdown within the past year and had been in ill health for a number of years, members of his family said. He lived at a downtown hotel.

In Downtown Section. Automobile traffic and pedestrians moved normally in the heart of the downtown section, where the club is situated at Cone street and Carnegie way, as Clarke fell to his death.

Clarke entered the building shortly before 7:30 o'clock, club attaches said. Neither his appearance nor manner suggested anything was amiss, they added, as Clarke stepped into an elevator and ascended to the roof.

The roof garden was closed last night, however, due to threatening weather.

No other person was on the roof when Clarke left the elevator, according to club attaches.

It was assumed Clarke climbed to the six-foot-wide ledge, about three feet high, for he was next seen by Albert Cameron, negro, 35, of 1174 McDaniel street, S. W., who was standing in the doorway of Hunter's Auto Storage, 143 Cone street.

Witness Story.

Cameron said: "I was just loafing in the doorway and I heard someone holler 'Hey!' At first I thought maybe it was one of the club porters, because I know all those boys. But I looked up and there was a man standing on the ledge of the roof. 'He hollered at me, 'Hey! Tell that man to look out—I'm coming.' There was a man walking on Cone street, toward Luckie street, and he was going by just under where the man stood on the roof."

Cameron said that he shouted up at Clarke, "What, boss?", and that Clarke shouted down again, this time yelling, "Tell him to look out!"

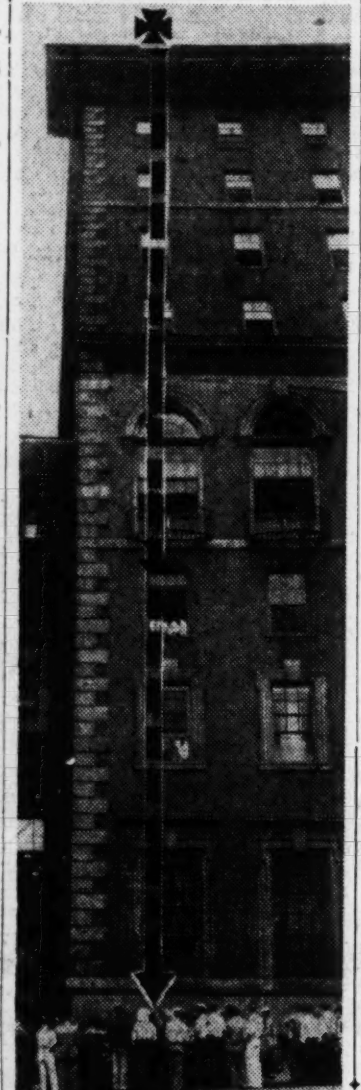

Then, Cameron said, Clarke seemed to stiffen. A split second later, his body hurtled downward. Cameron said it appeared as though Clarke had just "let himself go off the roof."

Clarke landed on the top of the World's Workers Ready To Fight, Says Googe, Back From Europe

By FRANK DRAKE.

The world's laboring man has changed his attitude from "peace at any price" to support of his government's rearmament program to protect his country from attack by totalitarian states, George Googe, southern representative of the American Federation of Labor, asserted yesterday upon his return from the International Labor Conference at Geneva, Switzerland.

Googe said the "war scare" in Europe has quieted down and now none believes there will be war inside of 18 months.

The southern AFL leader was encouraged by the treaties negotiated by the International Labor Organization requiring all governments to maintain adequate standards on wages, hours and living conditions of workers.

"This information will greatly benefit labor," he said. "It will enable all labor organizations to know the facts about the working man in all countries."

Googe visited England, France,

'MISLEADING' DATA IN UTILITIES' SUIT CHARGED TO TVA

'Misrepresentative' Evidence Was Prepared, But Not Used, Dr. Morgan Says at Hearing.

ACCUSATION CAPS STORMY SESSION

Deposed Chairman States Figures Would Show Power Costs Nothing.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 20.—(AP)—Dr. Arthur E. Morgan charged today that "misleading and misrepresentative" evidence was prepared but never used in the Tennessee Valley Authority's defense against a suit by 18 power companies at Chattanooga.

The former TVA chairman, testifying before a congressional investigating committee, said the evidence "never was submitted after I pointed out to our counsel the injury it would cause the professional standing of our engineers."

The experts were asked, he said, to make estimates which would tend to show that the cost of power generation was negligible.

A Stormy Session.

His charges climaxed a stormy session of the hearing, which at one time was thrown into an uproar when Morgan asserted TVA officials had instructed employees "not to talk" to him, and that he

JAPANESE TROOPS WILL TRY TO FORCE REDS TO RETREAT

Tokyo Decides on Mass Demonstration in Disputed Area After Crisis Is Laid Before Emperor.

TALKS BROKEN OFF BY MANCHOUKUO

Chinese, Meanwhile, Stall Japan's 'Big Push' Up Yangtze Against Hankow

TOKYO (Thursday), July 21.—(UP)—Japanese troops are planning a mass demonstration of force in the disputed Changkufeng area on the Manchoukuoan border where Soviet troops allegedly have set up fortifications on a strategic hill in Manchoukuo territory, it was learned today.

The reported Japanese demonstration would be undertaken in the hope that a display of a superior number of troops would cause the Soviet force to withdraw, it was said.

Foreign office sources said they hoped that the strong attitude being taken by Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese ambassador to Moscow, will make Maxim Litvinov, the Soviet foreign commissar, reconsider the Soviet contention that the area is Soviet territory.

Tension Increases.

As tension increased between Japan and Russia over the incident the Japanese foreign office awaited a reply from Moscow to two protests concerning fortification of the hill.

A general conference of high military leaders, to which the Japanese press attached a "special meaning," was summoned by General Seishiro Itagaki, minister of war, after he had made a report earlier today to the Emperor.

The Domei (Japanese) News Agency said Itagaki had laid the entire situation before the Emperor, and then called in the foreign minister, General Kazushige Ugaki, to discuss reports from the border.

Of Extreme Importance.

These were understood to include information that the Soviet Far Eastern forces had detached 300 men, including field artillerymen, to fortify the disputed hill, regarded as of extreme military importance.

The reports said further Russian reinforcements were being moved.

The Mercury, fast little upper unit of Britain's pick-a-back airplane (above), took off yesterday on an Atlantic flight from the back of its mothership, the Maia, after the big boat had reached a height of 1,000 feet above Foynes, Ireland. The Mercury is expected to visit Montreal and New York after making its first stop at Botwood, Newfoundland.

FILM COMPANIES NAMED AS TRUSTS

33 Firms Control 65 Per Cent of Industry, Government Charges

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP)—The federal government today charged 33 motion picture companies and 132 movie executives with controlling 65 per cent of America's movie entertainment in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

On motion of Thurman Arnold, assistant United States attorney general, Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard ordered subpoenas served on the 165 defendants, summoning them to court within 20 days.

Most of the powerful names on the business side of the motion picture industry are listed in the action, one of the largest ever brought by the government against alleged monopolies.

The reaction in Wall Street was immediate. Motion picture company shares broke sharply.

Eight companies were named as the principal defendants. They are Paramount Pictures, Inc., Loew's, Inc., the Irving Trust Company of New York as trustee in bankruptcy for Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation; Warner Brothers Pic-

10 Are Blown To Death On PWA Project

Baltimore Mayor Demands Speedy Probe of Water Tunnel Blast.

BALTIMORE, July 20.—(AP)—Immediate investigation of a dynamite blast that killed 10 men and injured six others working deep inside a new water tunnel—part of a $5,300,000 PWA project—was ordered tonight by Mayor Howard W. Jackson.

Fourteen workmen were tampered down a charge of 450 pounds of dynamite when the detonation mushroomed out of the solid rock, blasting men and rocks to bits. Seven were killed outright; three others died in hospitals. All were negroes.

The investigation will be conducted by Acting Chief Engineer Frank Duncan and Leon Small, city water bureau head, and their technical staffs.

Phillip Lesser, city explosives inspector, who suffered severe burns about the face, gave an eyewitness account of the blast.

"I was standing back of the men tamping the charge," he said, "looking right at them. But I didn't see or hear a thing. All I knew was that I felt a terrific concussion that flung me off my feet. It was pitch dark and I began to think maybe I'd never get out of that place alive."

The blast, one of the worst in Baltimore history, was the first serious accident since construction of the tunnel, from Gunpowder river to the pumping station, began early in 1937.

FRANCE PRESSES BRITAIN FOR HELP

London Apparently Is Not Prepared To Support Paris on Czech Pact

PARIS, July 20.—(AP)—Strengthened diplomatically by the state visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth, France today sought a British pledge to resist Germany's campaign against Czechoslovakia as a way of keeping the general European peace.

While the British monarch decorated France's tomb of the Unknown Soldier in a second day of ceremonies, French political leaders attempted to convince British Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax of the need for definite Franco-British military guarantees to Czechoslovakia.

But if the French had any success, the official report on the talks failed to disclose it.

Tread Path Alone. Some persons took this to mean that Halifax had made plain that France might have to fulfill her commitment to defend Czechoslovakia without British aid.

A central figure in the talks was Stephen Ojensky, Czechoslovak minister to Paris. A central factor was believed to be a plan offered by Reichsfuehrer Hitler for solution of the Czechoslovak problem which was brought to Paris by Halifax.

To back up their arguments against Britain's non-committal policy regarding protection of the central European republic against Nazi aggression, Premier Edouard

'Mercury' Will Touch Botwood, New Foundland, Then Go to New York.

MONTREAL, July 21.—(Thursday)—(Canadian Press). The seaplane Mercury reported heading into clear weather 580 miles off Botwood, Newfoundland, at 5:44 a. m. British summer time today (10:44 p. m. Atlanta time, Wednesday) on her Atlantic crossing from Foynes, Ireland. Officials took it for granted the plane would continue over Newfoundland to Montreal.

FOYNES, Ireland, July 20.—(AP) Britain's pick-a-back airplane thundered above the Atlantic ocean tonight, bound for America after a successful launching from the broad back of its weight-lifting partner.

Hooked together—the seaplane Mercury above and the flying boat Maia below—the two planes rose from the River Shannon this evening.

In the air, Donald C. T. Bennett, pilot of the Mercury, said crisply over the connecting telephone: "Ready!"

From the "mother" flying boat, Pilot A. S. Wilcockson replied: "Okay and good luck."

Bennett counted three and cried: "Go!" Both pilots pulled levers of a secret locking device. The planes parted, and the Mercury roared toward the setting sun at 8 p. m. (2 p. m. Atlanta time). The Maia returned to the base.

"On Time." A wireless message received from the Mercury two hours after the takeoff said 300 miles had been covered and that the flight was proceeding "exactly according to schedule."

Weather conditions along the Mercury's route were reported favorable. Radio Operator Albert Coster, Bennett's only companion, planned to keep in touch with both sides of the Atlantic and with ships at sea.

The Mercury's cargo consisted mainly of photographs, newsreels and newspapers rushed to Foynes after the arrival in Paris of King George and Queen Elizabeth on their visit of state.

INDICTED SENATOR TAKES OWN LIFE

N. Y. State Solon Refuses To Head Wife's Pleas.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Julius S. Berg, 42, Democratic state senator from the Bronx for the last eight years, killed himself with a revolver today, less than twenty-four hours after the New York county grand jury had secretly indicted him on charges of obtaining money by trickery and misrepresentation.

Berg shot himself in his Broadway law office after a twelve-hour feverish discussion and argument with his wife, Rose, who apparently had feared he was bent on suicide and had tried to persuade him to do nothing rash.

District Attorney Dewey's office had been investigating Berg for some time, and after his case had been presented to the grand jury last Wednesday, Berg was notified he could appear and explain the charges. When he had not appeared yesterday, the indictment was voted. It will not be filed, however, the district attorney's office said, because of his death.

Returns From Europe

GEORGE GOOGE.

NO MUSIC; BRIDE BALKS. "No wedding march, no wedding," declared Miss Irma Brown, of Melbourne, to her prospective husband, when, upon arrival at Scotch College chapel, it was found the electric wires to the organ were out of operation. She walked out on the pending ceremony and drove around in a car until the bridegroom scouted around and found electricians who could put the organ in order.

GOOGE RETURNS FROM TOUR ABROAD

AFL Leader Says World's Workers Are Prepared To Fight.

In France, Googe noted a spirit of unrest and disquietude among labor.

"The labor movement there is rather radical and has a communist influence," said he.

France has a national 40-hour work week, but the laborers are willing to suspend this hour limitation for the purpose of furthering the rearmament program, he commented.

While Googe was there, Germany conscripted all labor; conscription like that which comes with war. Googe did not think this made the German working man happy.

Round Peg in Square Hole. "The government tells the German worker what to do and gives him the wage it wants to," he asserted. "They have no regard for the kind of work a man has been doing but put him at anything they want to. A bricklayer may find himself digging ditches and a lawyer may find himself laying bricks. It's that, or off to a concentration camp."

England's labor movement, much like that of the United States is making progress. Labor there has combined with the liberal party to try to force speeding up of the rearmament program, Googe said.

It is this backing up of governments that leads Googe to think the laboring man of the world in general will fight gladly to prevent his country being taken over by a totalitarian state, such as Germany or Italy.

Germany, by the way, is the only country not a member of the International Labor Organization, Googe said. Italy is, and pays her dues, but this year she did not send any representatives to the conference.

"The countries which were in the League of Nations but withdrew, have not withdrawn from the labor organization," he asserted. "The International Labor Organization was founded as an auxiliary of the League to study economic and labor problems—not political ones."

"That is why the United States decided four years ago to join in."

Went Far, Saw Much. Googe went many places and saw many things, he said, but the most unusual one was the labor conference's public address system.

With delegations there from every nation in the world—except Germany and Italy, the little matter of understanding what a speaker was saying was a problem not to be ignored. They didn't. They solved it.

Each delegate had a seat equipped with ear phones. Whatever the language he spoke, all the delegates had to do to hear the address in a language he understood was to "tune" his ear phones.

Fluent interpreters sat in booths near the speaker's stand and translated what was said into the various languages.

BUILDING LEASED BY N. J. COMPANY

Federal Pharmacal To Move Offices Here.

A five-year lease involving an approximate rental of $20,000 was signed yesterday by the Federal Pharmacal Company, of Indianapolis, N. J., on a four-story building at 350-52 Nelson street, S. W. The concern, a manufacturer of medical products, plans to move its general offices and plant here.

Headed by H. M. McAuley, president of the company, several men will move here in about five or six weeks. The rest of the personnel will be employed locally.

The lease, negotiated by Gerald Blount, of Haas & Dodd, is for a building containing about 24,000 feet of floor space. The building will be extensively remodeled.

Don't Let Constipation Drag On!

Do you often have days when you wake up tired—when you feel dull, runk, all bogged down? Is it time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic? You should get at the cause of the trouble!

If you eat what most people do—just bread, meat, potatoes—chances are that just this fact is responsible: you don't get enough "bulk." "Bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft, "bulky" mass in the intestines that helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, what you need is crisp, crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains "bulk" plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B₁. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and see if your old sparkle doesn't come back! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Boys Cook 'Mighty Good' Meals in School

'Most Successful Enrichment' Session Comes to Close Here Tomorrow.

By FRANK DRAKE.

The broadest "enrichment" program ever attempted in the Atlanta public schools comes to a close tomorrow, when the first summer session of the system in years is completed.

Boys learned to cook and serve meals, girls and boys "studied" swimming, many children got school credit for attending vacation Bible class, while hundreds of others were marked "present" at school while they were enjoying camp life or trips to the mountains and sea with their families.

Unique the program was, but take it from school administration officials, this type of "learning" in addition to the "three R's," tended to give the children a "well-rounded personality."

Exercises demonstrating what the pupils learned are being held at the various schools this week, preparatory to ending the session tomorrow afternoon and beginning the real vacation.

Boys Prepare Meal. Dr. H. H. Bixler, director of research of the Atlanta schools, and E. R. Enlow, director of statistics and special services, got a sample of the new type instruction at the summer session yesterday.

They went out to Lee Street school to eat a meal prepared, cooked and served by the home training class, composed of four boys and seven girls.

"The boys like to know how to cook just as much as the girls do," said Dr. Bixler, "and they make mighty good cooks, too. The meal Dr. Enlow and I had at Lee Street today was certainly a good one."

Similar classes were held in other schools. The 5,038 boys and girls who attended the summer schools this year got all kinds of education. Of course, some repeated some classes in which they had failed, and others took new subjects just to make more progress during the winter terms, but the majority of them participated in the "enrichment" classes too.

Take Swimming Lessons. Many children went to regular school from 8 to 9 o'clock in the morning and then went to the parks to learn how to swim from 9 to 10 o'clock. After this break in the routine, they returned to classes until noon.

Proud mammas and papas of a number of youngsters have their children's ability to play musical instruments. For many pupils "took piano" or violin or some other instrument as one of the regular subjects for which they received school credit.

"The session has been most successful," said Dr. Bixler. There were 1,276 white children enrolled in the elementary schools and 1,199 negro children. Enrollment in the white junior high schools was 834, and in the negro junior highs, 160.

White senior high schools showed a total of 1,365 pupils, while there were 204 registered in the negro senior highs.

TALMADGE URGES FREE LAND PLANK

Road to Recovery, He Declares; George Makes Non-Political Talk.

Two Georgia candidates for the United States senate spoke yesterday—one, Eugene Talmadge, stressing his proposed program of free land for the unemployed, and the other, Senator Walter F. George, appearing before a women's club at Lithonia.

George, reviewing his record in the senate, said he had not "always seen eye to eye" with President Roosevelt, but that he had "never fought the national administration and never will fight it."

The senator explained that when he voted against some administration measures it was because he thought they were not for the best interests of Georgians.

Reiterating views expressed in a campaign address at Griffin Tuesday, George said he stood for the principles of a "liberal democracy" and added "the present leader, Franklin D. Roosevelt, is a great liberal leader of a great liberal force."

Speaking at Dallas, Talmadge declared it would not be necessary to grant more than 3,000,000 homesteads "to the unemployed, the destitute, the tenants and share croppers" to revive business.

When granted, he said, "the increase in purchasing power for materials, plow tools, wire, lumber and other articles that are necessary on the farm will revive and restore business."

No New Taxes. The former Governor asserted the federal government in Georgia alone owned 640,000 acres of land, enough, he said, to furnish homesteads to 12,800 Georgia families on relief or unemployed.

Because of land owned by the government, Talmadge said his program would "not cost a dime in additional taxes."

All senate candidates, except George, have speeches scheduled today.

Lawrence S. Camp, United States District Attorney, of Atlanta, campaigning as a New Dealer, will speak at Fitzgerald and Ocilla.

William G. McRae, Atlanta lawyer, will begin a three-day tour in his sound truck, speaking today at Cumming, Dawsonville and Dahlonega.

Talmadge at Winder. Talmadge has scheduled today speeches at Winder and over radio station WSB, Atlanta.

Senator George, it was announced, will make his fourth campaign speech at Metter July 28. His talk will be part of the celebration marking the opening of the tobacco sales season. It will be broadcast by station WSB, Atlanta, and station WTCC, Savannah.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was invited by the Barnesville Woman's Club today to accompany the President there August 11 for dedication of a local project of the Rural Electrification Administration.

Senator George and Camp have accepted invitations to attend.

$13,000 FIRE RAZES L. F. KENT RESIDENCE

The Cobb county home of L. F. Kent, president of the Moncrief Furnace Company, was completely destroyed by fire last night. Kent estimated the damage to the house and furnishings at $13,000.

The Kent home is on the Marietta road, about a mile and a half on the other side of the river. No member of the family was present when the house burned. The Buckhead fire department sent a small truck to the blaze, and prevented it from spreading.

roadster, almost at the precise moment that the pedestrian passed the car. The pedestrian was observed to turn quickly toward the parked car at the sound of the crash. He then broke into a run.

His identity was not learned. Cameron and several others from the garage ran to the parked car. The force of Clarke's fall demolished the top of the car, splintered the windshield and broke the steering wheel. The body immediately fell deeply in the seat.

A crowd gathered quickly, and an ambulance was called from the nearby establishment of Awtry & Lowndes. Clarke was taken to Georgia Baptist hospital, where he was pronounced dead upon arrival. The body was taken to F. M. Patterson & Son, who will announce funeral arrangements.

The name of the owner of the roadster which bore a South Carolina license, was not learned. The incident created excitement in the club and its immediate area. Clarke fell from a point on the roof about 50 feet south, on the Cone street side. The wide ledge projects several feet over the street.

Clarke, a member of the Athletic Club, was a native of this city. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Clarke, prominent Atlantans, and was educated at the University of Georgia. He was a member of Chi Phi fraternity and the Central Presbyterian church.

Clarke was retired. Besides his brother, Logan Clarke, he is survived by three sisters, Mrs. S. Julian Ravenel, of New York; Mrs. Harvey Johnson, also of New York, and Mrs. Lowry Arnold, of Atlanta; two other brothers, John S. Clarke and Arthur Clarke, both of Atlanta; several nieces and a nephew.

500 Youngsters Expected To Parade at Piedmont Park Tonight.

Children participating in the city's supervised play will stage a lantern fete beginning at 8 o'clock tonight at Piedmont park. The program is sponsored by the Atlanta Parks department and the WPA Recreational division. More than 500 youngsters are expected to participate.

A program of music will be presented by the WPA orchestra under the direction of Walter Sheets, at the park bandstand, beginning at 7:30 o'clock and continuing until 9:30 o'clock.

Displaying unusual interest, children have been occupied during the last few weeks making lanterns of all types for entrance in the fete. Prizes will be given for various types of lanterns, ranging from the largest to small-

Principals in Suit Set Up the Jurors

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., July 20.—(AP)—The jury was the winner in a Baldwin county superior court suit over attorney's fees between Sam Wiley and Ash Binford.

While the jury was studying the case, the principals discussed a settlement, involving a sum somewhat less than the jury returned in its verdict of $250.

So the principals locked arms, took the jury to town and split the cost of a set-up.

est and from the quaint to the bizarre.

J. Lee Harne Jr., WPA recreation supervisor, announced yesterday that children taking part will assemble on the children's playground for the judging. After that they will parade around the south side of the lake to the band shell where they will disband.

A similar program for negro children will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at Washington park, it was announced.

Go Bohemian! Guild's Giving Costume Party Tomorrow

There'll Be Singing Waiters and a First-Rate Floor Show.

There's to be a bit of the Bohemian atmosphere on Fifteenth street tomorrow night.

The Atlanta Theater Guild is giving a party. Three long years the Guild has struggled, attempting to educate Atlantans to the "amateur stage." Last week members met and decided the only way "the organization could keep going is to give a Bohemian Night and Carnival."

It'll be held at the Castle, 87 Fifteenth street beginning at 8:30 o'clock. A first-rate floor show is an added attraction.

Funds Go for Stage.

With each silver half dollar Atlantans use to purchase their admission card, they will be buying a plank for the Guild's new stage.

It's to raise money for a new stage that this party is being given. Heretofore the Guild has rented auditoriums in which to present their performances, the first of which was "The Drunkard" in January of 1937. But the rent has become prohibitive. Now the Guild seeks to build its own auditorium and stage in the Castle's old ballroom.

Guests will come dressed in Bohemian costumes — if they choose, and seated at tables around the ballroom will watch a floor show and several musical comedy acts, including reproductions of scenes from the famous "Show Boat."

In the featured musical comedy of the evening, Mrs. Joe Brown, dressed in French costume, will sing "Parlez-Moi d'Armour" and "Bergeryets." Lida Clarke will dance; Ed Peebles will present his "Junior League Half-Wits"; Eugene and Marge will dance humbas and the waltz, and Jimmy Calhoun will sing.

Members of the Guild, in Bohemian costume, will act as waitresses—and partners for dancing also will be a feature of the evening.

Bundling Scene.

The bundling scene from "Pursuit of Happiness," is another dramatic feature of the night's entertainment. Don Bolton will appear as the soldier, Martha de Golan as the maid Prudence, and Paul Carpenter as the preacher.

And not to be forgotten are the gypsy fortune tellers whose booths may be located by asking any of the Singing Waiters (the male members of the Guild).

Miss Martha de Golan and Don Bolton are co-chairmen in charge of details of the carnival while Zedene Swift is in charge of refreshments. Mrs. Paula Causey is director of the Guild; Vernon Williams is technical director; Willie Span is treasurer, and Dorothy Harbort is chairman of the prize committee for the Bohemian Night entertainment.

PARKER AND HUIET OPEN OFFICES HERE

107 Street and Hotel Quarters Established.

Two candidates for state house offices, Homer C. Parker, of Statesboro, and Ben T. Huie, of Atlanta, opened campaign headquarters here yesterday.

Parker, who is running for comptroller general, opened offices at the Henry Grady hotel. They are in charge of Mrs. Ollie Girardeau, of Bryan county, and Miss Clara Lanier, of Bulloch county.

Huie, who is running for commissioner of labor, has his offices at 7 Ivy street, N. E. He is a former Atlanta alderman and served for a time on the public service commission.

IRIOLOGY PROFESSOR'S APPEAL MOVE MADE

An appeal to Fulton superior court to review the criminal conviction of J. D. Levine, Philadelphia health lecturer on the "science of iriology," recently on a charge of practicing medicine without a license was underway yesterday.

Levine, who said he taught people how to read human ailments by signs and "spokes" in the human eye, was given a year's sentence by Judge Jesse M. Wood. The sentence was to be suspended on payment of a $250 fine. Attorney George Starr Peck yesterday filed certiorari proceedings contending Levine's right under federal and state constitutions had been violated. Peck contended Levine did not engage in the practice of medicine and that his right to free speech and assembly had been violated.

He said "the statement of budget operations of the state issued by State Auditor Zach Arnold for the fiscal year just ended shows that the legislature appropriated for old age, blind and dependent children the sum of $3,150,000, and that of this amount less than two

A preview of scenes awaiting Atlantans at the Bohemian night and carnival to be held tomorrow night at the "Castle," 87 Fifteenth street, under sponsorship of the Theater Guild. Dressed in typical Bohemian costume at the left is Miss Martha de Golan, co-chairman of the committee arranging the party. With her is Miss Lida Clark, dancer, who will be featured in the floor show. Proceeds raised at the carnival will be used to build a stage for the Theater Guild.

CANDIDATES BLAST RIVERS' SPENDING

J. J. Mangham, Robert F. Wood and Hugh Howell Turn Guns on Governor.

By ED BRIDGES.

GRiffin, Ga., July 20.—(AP)—J. J. Mangham and Robert F. Wood, both seeking the governorship, attacked the state administration's spending and tax program here today while at Dawsonville and Ellijay, Hugh Howell, a third candidate, criticized costs of government and handling of social security funds.

Mangham and Wood spoke to a crowd assembled for the second day's program of a three-day "home-coming" sponsored by the Griffin Junior Chamber of Commerce. Overcast skies and frequent showers failed to deter a large number from hearing the candidates propound their platforms.

Howell originally was scheduled to speak here with Mangham and Wood, but engagements at Dawsonville and Ellijay prevented his attendance. Governor E. D. Rivers, seeking a second term, will speak tomorrow on the closing day's program here.

Mangham Charges Spend Orgy. Mangham, Bremen banker, declared the Rivers program "means a continuation of the orgy of spending, while the Mangham program calls for retrenchment, for operation of the state government economically and establishing it on a sound business basis."

Wood, speaking next, asserted Rivers' "taxes and policies have tremendously injured the finances of all Georgia counties," and reiterated he is running on an "anti-Roosevelt and anti-Rivers platform."

Meanwhile Howell at Dawsonville directed criticism against the state administration's handling of old age pensions, and aid to the needy blind and dependent children.

He said "the statement of budget operations of the state issued by State Auditor Zach Arnold for the fiscal year just ended shows that the legislature appropriated for old age, blind and dependent children the sum of $3,150,000, and that of this amount less than two million was paid out for the purpose appropriated."

Declares Security Funds Cut. Rivers "reduced the appropriations for our old people, for the blind and for dependent children, but he raised the appropriation of his own office to 150 per cent," he added.

Mangham, a former state highway chairman, outlining his program, declared it was "directly opposite" to that of the Governor's "in many respects."

Mangham said he favors reduction of the gasoline tax which "is not favored by Rivers because he has to have that money to pay one of his armies of useless office holders."

He also said he proposed to substitute a state store plan for selling liquor instead of the state licensed private stores as provided under the present law. Other planks of his platform include abolition of the poll tax and rehabilitation of the farmer.

Mangham charged the administration "has failed utterly to match $6,000,000 federal aid funds that should have been brought to Georgia" for highway development, and added "They did not match them for the simple reason that the highway department has not funds for this purpose. In fact, the state is more than $4,000,000 over-contracted."

Taxes Increased, Says Wood. The Bremen banker declared "We've got to quit adding taxes if we are to restore normal business conditions and establish our state on a basis where our businessmen and farmers can make at least enough money to pay expenses."

Wood criticized both the national and the state administrations. He declared "Rivers has immensely increased taxes, engaged in a wild orgy of spending the taxpayers' money (and) swollen the number of public employees out of all reason in an attempt to build up a voting machine for himself. He brought back liquor to Georgia. He is accused of trying to centralize power in Atlanta, as has Roosevelt in Washington."

The Athens salesman asserted "It is time to get a Governor in Georgia who will cut all taxes, reduce the mob of tax eaters to reasonable proportions, and conduct the business of the state with economy, efficiency and honesty, which is not being done now."

Howell in his Dawsonville speech declared "Ed Rivers reduced the appropriation for Alto and made empty beds. He reduced the appropriation for the unfortunate at Milledgeville and filled the county jail with unfortunate. But he paid Lamar Murdaugh (state welfare department director) and all the other high-priced workers in the welfare department 100 cents on the dollar and paid them twice each month."

Hits Office Appropriation. The Atlanta attorney said "The appropriation for the Governor's office was $100,000. Ed Rivers transferred $16,000 from the stabilization funds so as to pay this appropriation 100 per cent, and in addition to that he transferred $47,507.85 from the emergency fund so that actual payments to the Governor's office were $144,774.65 when the appropriation was $100,000."

Howell said the $382,000 appropriation for the administration of the welfare department "was built back to 100 per cent by Rivers out of the stabilization fund, but the appropriations for the old age, blind and dependent children were cut and allowed to remain cut."

The "homecoming" began yesterday with speeches by the four candidates for the United States senate. The speaking program was interspersed with music and other forms of entertainment.

Mangham and Wood were the only speakers today. Tomorrow Governor Rivers speaks in the morning and candidates for congress from the fourth congressional district wind up the meeting in the afternoon.

GIRLS' MILITARY BAND TO PLAY

An invitation by the Griffin Junior Chamber of Commerce to attend and play for Griffith's homecoming celebration today was accepted yesterday by the Georgia State Girls' Military band, Atlanta musical organization.

The band, consisting of 125 girls living within a radius of 15 miles of Atlanta, will go to Griffin in a motorcade of buses and automobiles. Mrs. Readie P. Ashurst, vice president of the band, will be official chaperone of the party. It was understood a number of parents of band members also would go.

H. A. Taylor, director-instructor, will be in charge of the program for the concert to be given by the band in front of the speakers' stand erected on the high school campus.

The girls' band, the only organization of its kind in the United States, was chartered Tuesday in Fulton superior court. The girls already have accepted an invitation to give a concert at Barnesville August 11, when President Roosevelt appears there to dedicate a rural electrification project.

Director Taylor announced today that the girls would assemble on West Peachtree street, in front of the Biltmore hotel, at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, where they will take the buses for the Griffin trip. He urged that all members be on hand promptly to avoid any delay in the schedule of the buses.

A prairie chicken census has disclosed but 8,711 of the birds in Texas, although there were an estimated 1,000,000, 75 years ago.

I ONLY HAVE TO GROW
1,650,850 HAIRS
TO AVOID BALDNESS!

Let Thomas Help You Save Your Hair

If you live the normal span of life and never become bald you will grow about 15 full heads of hair—1,650,850 hairs. A hair grows to maturity in four years, falls out, and is replaced (if your scalp is healthy) by a new, live hair.

You avoid baldness, therefore, not by trying to stop normal hair-fall, but by seeing to it that your scalp replaces each hair which falls out. New hair fails to grow when (1) the scalp is attacked by some local infection, such as dandruff; or (2) when scalp circulation is sluggish and the dormant hair lacks nourishment. Thomas treatment is designed to overcome the 14 local scalp ills which cause most baldness and to gently stimulate the sources of hair nourishment in the scalp.

For twenty years The Thomas' have been ending scalp worries for others, and can do the same for you. Call today for a free scalp examination, and learn how this reliable, proved method overcomes dandruff, stops abnormal hair loss, and promotes hair growth on thin and bald spots.

TROOPS HALT RIOT OF IOWA STRIKERS; SCORES ARE INJURED

500 in Early Morning Fighting at Maytag Washing Machine Factory.

NEWTON, Iowa, July 20.—(AP)—This community of 12,000 persons operated under the command of national guard officers tonight after early morning street fighting around the Maytag Washing Machine factory sent one person to a hospital and a score home with cuts and bruises.

The street riot, in which nearly 500 persons participated, broke out like a flash and ended just as suddenly when national guardsmen appeared on the scene.

NLRB HEAD, ATTORNEY CLASH OVER CASE

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP)—Earl F. Reed, Pittsburgh attorney, charged today Chairman J. Warren Madden, of the National Labor Relations Board conferred secretly with CIO officials on a case in which the CIO accuses Weirton Steel of unfair labor practices.

In return, Madden called Reed a "demagogue," implying that the talks to which Reed objected were of no significance, he said the lawyer should be ashamed of himself for "attempting to create a prejudice."

FRANCE PRESSES BRITAIN FOR HELP

Viscount Halifax Outlines Hitler's Secret Formula for Czechs.

Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet brought four other French diplomatic and political leaders into lunch-time conversations at Quai d'Orsay, the foreign office.

These four—Former Premiers Camille Chautemps, Leon Blum and Edouard Herriot and the French ambassador to London, Charles Corbin—joined Daladier, Bonnet and the Czechoslovak envoy in telling Halifax that France was determined to march to Czechoslovakia's aid in event of a German attack.

Hitler's formula for ending the smoldering quarrel between the Czechoslovak government and the Nazi leaders of the 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans remained a diplomatic secret. It was believed Halifax received the plan a few hours before he sailed for France yesterday with the King and Queen.

CHAMBERLAIN PRESSED FOR AN EXPLANATION

LONDON, July 20.—(AP)—Labor members of parliament today sought from Prime Minister Chamberlain an explanation of secret negotiations between Great Britain and Germany.

The action came after a quiet conference between Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, and Captain Fritz Wiedemann, Adolf Hitler's adjutant, had given rise to reports the two nations were preparing to launch new diplomatic talks to end all points of misunderstanding between them.

cargo, was expected at Botwood, Newfoundland, the first stop, in about 11 hours. From Botwood the plane is to go to Montreal and then New York.

Major Robert Mayo, technical general manager of Imperial Airways and inventor of the unique plane, watched the take-off. Mayo designed the plane to eliminate dangers of heavily laden long distance craft taking off under their own power. Launched from the back of the Maia, the Mercury has a longer flying range than the Caledonia, flying boat which crossed the Atlantic on trial spins last summer. It also consumes less fuel.

The Mercury has a maximum speed of more than 210 miles an hour and a 4,000-mile cruising range. The distance to Botwood is only 1,985 miles.

The Mercury carried about 1,000 gallons of fuel to inaugurate the 1938 season, preliminary to regular Atlantic traffic planned for next year.

BRITAIN HASTENS TO EXPAND IN AIR

$114,505,000 More Voted in Night Session.

LONDON, July 21.—(Thursday) (AP)—Britain early today boosted expenditures to speed up her lagging 1938 air expansion program to a total of 126,401,000 pounds ($632,005,000).

Moving for adoption of a supplementary air estimate for 22,901,000 pounds ($114,505,000), Air Secretary Sir Kingsley Wood disclosed in a late night session of the house of commons that most of this would be raised by a loan. Commons approved the supplementary estimate, biggest item of which was a $45,000,000 provision for new airplanes and "barrage balloons," the latter a system of balloons supporting dangling cables to trap attacking planes.

Right here is the tire that's setting the pace!

There's a thrill in having all that thick, tough, springy, new rubber under you—a mental good-by to tire trouble.

MAN, when you dress up your wheels with this handsome, stalwart new 1938 edition of the famous Goodyear "G-3" All-Weather, you're getting something!

Think of all the smooth-riding, bump-swallowing, mile-eating comfort that's in that big buoyant oversize casing—built with patented fatigue-resisting Supertwist cord in every ply!

And it's great to feel those husky sharp-edged CENTER TRACTION diamonds gripping the road—easing your grip on the wheel, easing your mind of skid worries!

You know what the All-Weather tread can do—the whole world does. For 23 consecutive years more people have depended upon it than on any other—because experience proves it safest, not only on pavements, but on any road.

That's why other tire makers keep experimenting with new treads. Switching from buttons to knobs! From ribs to wrinkles! Always "sensational," always "revolutionary"—always changing.

But so stand out is the All-Weather in non-skid traction that no tire maker—not even Goodyear—has ever been able to surpass the safety efficiency of its basic diamond-block pattern.

In the new 1938 "G-3" this fundamentally correct tread design is further refined and improved to meet 1938 motoring conditions.

It is wider and flatter—for more road contact. The blocks are deeper—for longer non-skid mileage. There are more diamonds, nested closer together—to give still more grip, greater traction and braking power!

And the rubber itself is tougher—an exclusive new Goodyear compound that hits a new high in durability and "spring" to fight the grind-away action of today's higher speeds.

Yet with all this extra value—Goodyears cost no more than other tires. So why not give yourself a break and enjoy the priceless satisfaction of riding on the finest tires money can buy?

HERE'S THE NEW 1938 EDITION "G3" ALL-WEATHER

BUILT FOR 1938 DRIVING NEEDS WITH

- CENTER TRACTION—more sharp-edged diamonds nested closer together provide maximum skid resistance in all directions—greatest stopping power—surest-footed traction.
- WIDER TREAD—gives extra road contact; insures slower, more even wear.
- SUPER-TOUGH RUBBER—an exclusive new Goodyear compound that resists the grinding action of high-speed travel, increasing mileage.
- MAXIMUM BLOWOUT AND BRUISE RESISTANCE—from patented Supertwist cord in every ply.
- PLUS HIGHEST QUALITY WORKMANSHIP that comes from Goodyear's priceless experience as the world's largest tire maker.

Captain David D. Hedekin, 33, one of the most prominent young officers at Fort McPherson, died yesterday at the station hospital at Fort Oglethorpe of injuries received in a polo game there Sunday.

Concerning Captain Hedekin's death, Major General George Van Horn Moseley, fourth corps area commander, said yesterday: "I feel very deeply the loss of Captain Hedekin, both personally and for the service. He was outstanding as a distinguished captain and would have gone far in the army."

Captain Hedekin was the son of Brigadier General and Mrs. Charles A. Hedekin, of Washington, D. C., who survive him. He also is survived by his wife, the daughter of Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Lawrence W. Young, of Knoxville, Tenn., and a brother, Captain Thomas B. Hedekin, of Fort Knox, Ky.

No funeral arrangements had been announced last night.

SEC SETS HEARING ON UTILITY SYSTEM

Will Seek Simplification of Vast Holdings.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP)—The Securities Exchange Commission, acting under the utility holding company act, began today its first action to simplify a major utility holding company system.

Chairman Douglas announced a hearing would be held here August 8 to determine what steps the $300,000,000 Utilities Power and Light Corporation should take to limit operations "to a single integrated public utility system."

The commission will consider whether the company should be required to rid itself of interest in "any or all" of its 45 subsidiaries.

Douglas told reporters the decision indicated the commission meant business under Section 11-B of the holding company act. This section calls for integration of utility holding systems. In the process of integration, companies are required to simplify themselves into well-knit units, both financially and geographically.

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 21, 1938.

"GOD-GIVEN AIDS"

From the lips of a New England Governor, Wilbur L. Cross, of Connecticut, there came last Tuesday a perhaps unintentional eulogy of the south as an ideal section for industrial development. That eulogy constituted a sales talk for this section which has never been surpassed by any individual, or group, of the south. The Southeastern Governors' Conference should reproduce it and use it wherever there is a prospective industry to be induced to locate in the southeast.

Governor Cross was speaking at the hearing, in Buffalo, before the Interstate Commerce Commission, on the petition of the southeast for removal of the unfair discriminations in railroad freight rates against this territory. Governor Cross was arguing against granting the petition and against equality in freight costs per mile hauled for the products of the south, which enter into competition with the products of his own state.

Industry, said Governor Cross, is being attracted to the south by "lower costs of wages, fuel and living conditions." He attributed "materially reduced living costs in fuel, clothing, recreation and food" to the south's natural advantage of climate and, admitting that southern freight rates are now higher, said the commission should not treat the south, in freight rates, on a parity with other sections, because of "all these other advantages."

"The south has God-given aids which even the Interstate Commerce Commission cannot match," he stated.

Then why, Governor, should New England and the other states of the north seek, through that Interstate Commerce Commission, to maintain a tariff which amounts to a sectional charge for the blessings which you assert yourself were given to this section by God?

Nothing has so clearly revealed the attitude of jealousy for those God-given advantages to the south, on the part of other sections, than the words of Governor Cross. They come as the climax to a series of policies, sponsored and backed by the industrial north, which amount, in the final analysis, to nothing less than an attempt to make the south pay for the advantages bestowed by the Almighty.

The wages and hours bill in its original form would have forced southern industry to pay the same wages as industry in the north, despite the "God-given aids," of lower living costs, lower fuel and lower food, clothing and recreation costs. And despite the parallel fact that the southern worker does not create as much wealth as his northern fellow, through lower capital investments in the south and fewer labor-saving equipment in southern factories.

The south, as a matter of fact, pays its workers a greater proportion of the value they add, through manufacture, to the raw materials than does the north.

After seeking to impose an unjust, mandatory scale of wages on southern industry, the industrial north is now striving desperately to retain the artificial advantage of freight discriminations which should never have been imposed at all, had justice dictated.

And Connecticut's Governor lets the cat out of the bag when he lists the "God-given aids" of the south and argues that the Interstate Commerce Commission, though unable to entirely offset these advantages, should continue the freight injustice in an effort to remedy the oversight of the Almighty, who made these blessings of climate a free gift, without charge or fee whatsoever.

Verne's hero, Phileas Fogg, was 80 days rounding the globe. It has to be borne in mind, though, that he stopped to shave.

Anyway, Olympic games would seem silly in a country at war. This modern artillery does things so much more thoroughly than a shot putter.

Scarlett O'Hara never knew the half of it. She survived a civil war, not a nation-wide argument over whether she was the type for the celluloid version.

Stratosphere wars in air so rarefied the pilots must breathe oxygen are now predicted.

The latter, of course, would find themselves in the thin of the battle.

No rose but has its thorn, and with a new streamlined golf club it is possible to drive the ball 15 yards farther into the rough.

KNOCK OFF THAT CHIP, IF YOU DARE!

Growing tension of the situation on the Manchoukuoan border provides more or less of a puzzle to minds attuned to the peaceful modes of the western world. Citizens of the United States and other countries not infected with the warlike spirit view with amazement the apparent deliberate design, by both Russia and Japan, to bring about a new war.

Soviet troops have occupied a mountain near the border between Siberia and Manchoukuo. The Russians claim that mountain is in Siberian territory. The Japanese declare it is within Manchoukuo. The Japanese demand that the Russians retreat. The Russians refuse.

There is great clamor in Tokyo, with threats of war and nationalistic fulminations by the professional jingoists. And Manchoukuo threatens to throw the alleged "invaders" out if they don't get out voluntarily.

At the same time the Tokyo press reports movements of great masses of Russian troops and war equipment to the scene of the trouble. The rumblings of war grow heavily ominous and the stage seems to be set for another chapter of earthly horror.

It is to Europe, however, that the observer looks with gravest apprehension. For, after all, a war confined strictly to the east need not directly affect the west. Indirectly, of course, through trade and finance and human suffering, it would affect the whole world. But not unless it spreads over Europe need there be fear of direct American involvement.

The danger of such a war spreading westward is, however, by no means slight. There is the "axis" agreement between Germany, Italy and Japan. Would Germany remain quiescent if she thought Russia was so occupied with the Japanese, to the east, that the time was opportune for high-handed policies with the little countries on Russia's west, already eyed hungrily by Hitler and his advisers of the Reich? Would Germany proceed so cautiously in her designs upon Czechoslovakia if she was convinced the Russians could not come to the aid of the Czechs?

Then, if Germany became aggressive against Czechoslovakia and other Balkan states, would France remain inactive? France, it must be remembered, has reiterated again and again she will permit no violation of Czechoslovak territory. Britain, too, is pledged to support France in event of war. The two democratic nations, in fact, have already agreed upon general strategy, with the armies of both under single French command and the navies of both united under British leadership.

The one bright spot in the picture is the recent evidence that Hitler desires no war. He has, it is reported, sent a proposal, for British approval, for peaceful settlement of controversies between the Czech government and the Sudeten Germans within that country.

The darkest cloud on the peace horizon today comes from that disputed mountain at the Siberian-Manchoukuoan border. It may spread until the thunders of war roll all around the world. Or it may be but a local disturbance, confined to a small area. God grant the latter proves true.

MODERN LADY GODIVA

On a day in the 11th century, in the English town of Coventry, a lady went for a ride through the streets, unclad, upon a beautiful white horse. Her husband sanctioned the stunt and agreed, in exchange, to remit oppressive taxes against the people. So, with blinds closed and all the people indoors, Lady Godiva ambled through the winding streets upon her charger, clothed only in her long, flaxen hair. But one very human little old man, a tailor, could not restrain his curiosity. He indulged in just one little peep. Before he could be reproved by the lady, who had caught a fleeting glimpse of him as she passed, he was stricken blind.

Near London, a few days ago, another lady went for a ride—on a decrepit old plug. Clad in flesh-colored trunks, brassiere and a streaming flaxen wig, a trifle more, perhaps, than is usually worn these days at the seashore, she ambled through the streets, not for the purpose of reducing taxes—for nobody reduces taxes any more—but in the interest of sweet charity.

All went well until the not unexpected happened, even as in the 11th century. Rushing from the sidewalk, another little, but bolder, old man caught the lady by the leg, gave her a yank, screaming "Down with this sacrilege!" Unlike the ancient rider, however, the modern Lady Godiva was well chaperoned in the person of her father. Instead of being stricken blind, the intruder was stricken down by a well-timed right. As he was being hustled away, he was heard to mutter: "I think it's awful!"

But it was not definitely determined whether the old gentleman was suddenly overwhelmed by the "unclad" Godiva or shocked at the sight of a horse on the streets of a modern city. Surely, it could not have been the former, for where is the man who hasn't seen a modern bathing beauty contest?

New in the science of government is the sensation of compulsory well-being. Hitler reports that the Austrians are happy or else.

That sound, as from the heart, would be Windsor's sigh of relief on learning that Babe Hutton's new quarry is "the most eligible bachelor in Europe."

A great truth, long known to gridiron scribes, dawns gradually on the Japanese brother, viz., that first downs don't count in a final score.

VIENNA'S OLD CHARM GONE

(From the Macon Telegraph.)

Reports from Vienna indicate that thousands of its citizens have been jailed or placed in concentration camps by the Nazis since Austria was taken over by the Fuehrer.

The Nazis in Austria seek to minimize the figures and give the impression that everybody is happy, but impartial observers beg to differ with that view.

Reports say the domination by the Nazis is complete, with terror too widespread for anyone to think of resistance. Outwardly, the whole face of the city has been changed. Once it had a charm all its own. It was cosmopolitan; it was gay and delighted in all forms of culture. Only in a nominal sense—only in language, was it German. Now it is trampled into a common pattern. It is just another German city.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The Pennsylvania CIO has endorsed candidate Governor George H. Earle. The hand of blessing they laid upon the Governor was clammy with distaste, yet they will give him and other Democrats what support they can.

No recent development has cast a clearer light on the state of the labor movement and the present thinking of its leader. After all, in his campaign for the Democratic senatorial nomination, George Earle indulged in a personal attack on John L. Lewis and the other CIO leaders. His relations with Philadelphia's contractor boss, Matt McCloskey, have already been exposed and his goings-on as Governor of Pennsylvania are about to be subjected to a grand jury investigation.

The CIO leaders are under no illusions about the personal qualities of Governor Earle. In fact, if they had their choice, they would rather see him beaten than any other American politician, except Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, and Governor Martin Davey, of Ohio. The point is that the CIO leaders no longer have their choice.

The alternative to supporting Earle is letting the Republican ticket win in Pennsylvania. And the Republican ticket is owned, lock, stock and barrel, by the worst enemies of the CIO, such men as Ernest Weir, Joe Pew, Joe Grundy and Moe Annenberg. The CIO leaders believe that, if the candidates of this big business junta should triumph, the re-establishment of the old coal and iron politics is the least they can expect.

FEAR COMES The truth is that Pennsylvania is only one among many states where the CIO leaders believe that their movement is endangered. For the first time since the break with the AFL, John L. Lewis and his closest advisers are frightened.

Considering the natural corrosive effect of bad times, the CIO unions are still remarkably strong. There is no doubt in the minds of Lewis, or Lee Pressman, or Phil Murray, or Sidney Hillman that the principle of industrial unionism will survive. But, because their membership is concentrated in a small number of large industrial states, they have found their national political influence less than they had hoped. And they have learned to fear the effects of vigilantism, even in the states where they are strongest.

THE LABOR MAP The most cursory inspection of the national labor map will reveal the reasons for the CIO leaders' fright. In Ohio, for example, Governor Davey is a better-than-even bet for re-election, in spite of a record considerably more odorous, from the CIO viewpoint, than George Earle's. Davey is the avowed enemy of the CIO and enjoys the support of many large industrialists in his state. If Davey wins in the end, his first objective is likely to be breaking the Ohio CIO unions.

In spite of the CIO support of the Democrats, the Republicans have a good chance in Pennsylvania. The story of Jersey City is known to the world, but it has less publicized parallels in New Orleans, Memphis and Kansas City. In California, Michigan, Minnesota and many other states, the tide of vigilantism is rising. And everywhere an intensive drive is being carried on against the National Labor Relations Board.

All these developments together add up to a real threat of an outbreak, particularly directed against the CIO. The AFL leaders, glad to see the CIO industrial unions in danger, will give aid and comfort to the attackers. The growing anti-CIO feeling among the farmers will keep many politicians quiet. And thus, in the nation, the CIO leaders can look only to the President, while, in local situations, they must make such compromises with expediency as their indorsement of George Earle.

JOHN L. AND F. D. R. In their new policy of compromise, the CIO leaders hope that they are only retreating to consolidate their ranks. How far they must retreat, whether indeed, the retreat will become a rout, depends upon the President.

And here also the CIO men have their fears. The relations between the President and John Lewis are still bad. There is personal animosity, sharpened by disagreements on policy, between the two men. The President has let it be known that he thinks the CIO has often gone too far, and he has shown Lewis and other CIO men that he regards himself as the real founder of the new labor movement.

But, in the end, it looks as though the President and the CIO will have to get together. If they dislike each other, they hate their common enemies more.

The Urge To Sleep. This is written on the day when your column conductor passes another milestone in the record of personal years. Not going to tell you, by which you can surmise they are mounting fairly high.

It may be age that causes it, but at the moment of writing am plagued with a desperate desire to sleep. Can hardly hold the old head up and if this desk chair were just a wee mite more comfortable, expect there would be snores sounding in the office all day. Eyes persist in drooping and yawns come whether or no.

So, if it is a sleepy column, this morning, you know the reason why. "Yargh h h h!! H u m m m m!!"

You See, It's Like This— You see, it's like this: Write away to visit, last Wednesday. Letters say she is having a glorious time and her descriptions of the cows and tobacco farms and post offices and railroad depots and theaters and hotels of Kentucky and Ohio and Illinois grow poetic in their enthusiasm.

However, she went away Wednesday. Thursday evening was not marked by engagements. Spent a quiet time at home, but had a new murder mystery novel and there was no one to guard against the fearful dissipation of reading in bed far too long. Turned off the light and went to sleep at 2 o'clock. Leaving four and a quarter hours for repose prior to the alarm at 6:15.

Friday night attended a stag party downtown. Had a grand time, but by the time the last fellow had told that "one more" story that was bursting for expression, and so had I—it was again to bed in the wee sma' hours.

Saturday night the party was at the apartment of a friend. Perfectly dignified and proper and altogether delightful. But it lasted well into Sunday morning. And again, as on every other morning, the alarm was set for 6:15. And I have to get out of bed to stop the ringing. And then I'm up.

That Sunday. Sunday, I've already reported, included a trip to the mountains and the camps and return. With a dilemma on the side of a red clay road with a 15 per cent upgrade. That resulted in another arrival home long after respectable hours for retirement.

Monday an engagement to speak up town. Not quite so late turning in, but later than customary. And now, yawns. Gosh, what yawns!

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Provocative NEW YORK, July 20.—The most provocative editorial I have read in a year was the one in which the New York Daily News, a New Deal paper, proposed an investigation of the press.

There was one bug in it. That was where Captain Joe Patterson, the editor and prop, proposed that this be President Roosevelt's answer to criticism of himself and to publicity regarding Jimmy's insurance business.

He said Alvin Johnston's article in the Saturday Evening Post entitled "Jimmy's Got It" in effect accused the President and Jimmy of being crooks and grafters—a conclusion with which I disagree, believing that at the very worst they have only been measured alongside the President's own expressed concept of ethical conduct and that the decision as to whether they do or don't measure up has been left to the people. He puts the blame on other people's avarice and their morals, too, doesn't he?

An investigation of the press would not be an answer. The investigation would defeat its own purpose if it were offered as an answer, because any publisher or publicist who got his bib caught in the wringer would holler "persecution" and "less majesty" and play off the motive against the results.

Foreign Press But aside from this stipulation, the investigation would be a constructive amendment a suggestion that the investigation by all means include an inquiry into the foreign press of this country, which is a mystery to all of us non-foreigners or malinguists and might be promoting sedition under foreign subsidy given in the form of money or official honors from European dictators.

These papers circulate in little clots of foreign-minded Americans, hyphen-Americans and anti-Americans, and it would be consistent with the investigation to see from their file what they have been saying about the country which is their host. And if this investigation is to go into the financial life of the American press, on a prowl for obligations which might impose hidden but potent motives for their editorial policies, our foreign press should be similarly inspected. Our religious press, too. Let's make it a party.

Offhand, I can't think of enough high-minded statesmen in both houses of congress to make a quorum for such an investigating body, so we have to stand for whatever we get in the way of personnel even though it included Minton, of Indiana. Otherwise we would seem to be saying that an investigation would be all right, but that our business is so noble and sensitive that men don't exist who are fit to ask us questions and that, therefore, to our great regret, we would have to forego the pleasure of vindicating our honor.

Important Point I wish I knew the precise location of the go-to-hell point in such investigations at which a witness is justified in telling a senator to go and kiss a pig, because some of these investig'g trols, when they start taking a victim to town, do take fiendish joy in chasing him up Main street with his pants on his arm. But old Doc Townsend told them to go to hell, and, although they gave him 30 days in the flea bag, public opinion was such that the statesmen finally sued and the doctor was paid.

I disagree with Captain Patterson where he states a belief that the great majority of anti-New Deal newspapers and magazines are trying to build up a fanatical hatred of the President. That of itself is an incitation to class hatred and the disastrous consequences which the Daily News foresees unless the boil be lanced by a press investigation.

The only square way to reply to the anti-New Deal editorial is to refute each criticism, remembering always that there is no obligation requiring a publisher or editorial commentator to approve all or any part of the New Deal or to refrain from criticizing all or any part of it.

According to Patterson's argument here, the only way to prevent disastrous consequences, is to shut up about the New Deal and fall back on the old "swat the fly" and "crime must go" editorial formula. I submit that this is the common and most arrogant error of the New Deal and its editorial supporters; that if you don't agree with them you are dangerous and probably a louse.

Men Who Deserve Respect Usually Happen to Be Men Who Can Hurt You

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

When the west was young and wild there was little to indicate respect for law and order, but there was a well-defined etiquette governing the business of homicide.

A tenderfoot or peaceful citizen might ambush a grizzly bear or a cantamount, or approach one gun in hand, for only by that means could he hope to survive. But he could not thus approach a badman. It wasn't etiquette. It wasn't "fair."

It was necessary to accost the badman empty-handed; let him know one's purpose; and then try to beat him to the draw.

Why was this the only "fair" process? Because the gunmen, having practiced much, invariably got in the first shot—and they were the ones who made the rule.

Many generations ago, the young bloods of England, calling themselves "the fancy," patronized bare-knuckle prize fighters and learned the art of boxing.

Why did they decide that only fist fights were fair? Because they had skill with their fists and were sure to win.

A layman abused and bullied by an arrogant prize fighter might draw the smallest of guns and easily defend himself, but it wouldn't be "fair." He must put up his untrained fists and awkwardly paw the air until the prize fighter knocks out his teeth and breaks his nose and finally hammers him unconscious.

In pioneer days, simple and hardy men settled and tamed the rich prairie country and made the land valuable. Then soft-handed, hard-faced lawyers appeared on the scene, made new rules, and took the land away from them. It was done legally, of course.

And the robbed pioneer who used a gun to regain his property became an outlaw or got himself hanged. Stealing had to be done according to the rules. And the rules were made by the lawyers who profited by them.

Rules always favor the strong. For only the strong have the power to make rules, and it isn't in human nature to make rules to favor the other fellow.

Is there hope for the losers? Short of universal Christian brotherhood, there is none except in organizing to make themselves strong and then making new rules. Seizing American sailors was Britain's "right" only till America developed the power to stop it.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

The Czechs Are Not Very, Very Friendly The Czechs are in the news again. They are to be classified as "tough cookies," are the Czechs. They will fight if given a chance. They have a great capacity for fighting for hatred and for downright unfriendliness. Any traveler who has traveled in the new Czechoslovakia will tell you that, provided, of course, he has got outside the Czech capital.

I remember coming out of Austria after the Anschluss and the plebiscite of April 10. We were in a third class compartment. That meant wooden seats. Eight of us were in the car. There were two German soldiers, one Austrian soldier, one member of a labor battalion; an Englishman getting his baggage out of the trunk when the Germans came in; two Austrian girls and your reporter.

It was very crowded. The compartment was too warm. When the window was pulled down it was too cold. The aisle along side the compartment was jammed with baggage and with people.

At Frankfurt the man from the labor battalion and one of the soldiers left the train. One of the German girls snapped down the shades, slid the door, clicked off the main light and on the night light—a small, green small bulb which made every one have a mask-like, pasty face. She put up a warning finger and, speaking the international language, said, "Shhhhhhhhh."

She was hoping that by pretending the compartment was filled we would have no people trying to pry into it. There would be more room. One could stretch. There would be more comfort.

All seemed to go well. The train began to move out of the exchanged grins. One of the German girls reached to the rack above her head and pulled down a bag and opened it. It revealed a noble sausage, some bread, butter, hard-boiled eggs, ham and other commodities. She grinned happily. Another of the occupants pulled down two of those long bottles of hock wine.

Then the Door Slid Open Then the door opened quite wide. An apparition appeared. It had a face, which in the green light, looked like a death's head. There was a black shawl about it. Then the body appeared. It was clad in a black dress. Under one arm was a very dirty boy. By her side stood another. Two had left. Three were entering.

She had a bundle. In it were old clothes, a bottle of wine and half a loaf of dry bread in the center of which was a wadded sort of sausage. She grinned, showing dirty teeth.

She was a Czech heading for a labor camp in Belgium to join her husband. The children wore cheap, pitiful cotton suits. On their heads were German sailor's hats, much too large and stiff with paper. Their heads were large from rick-

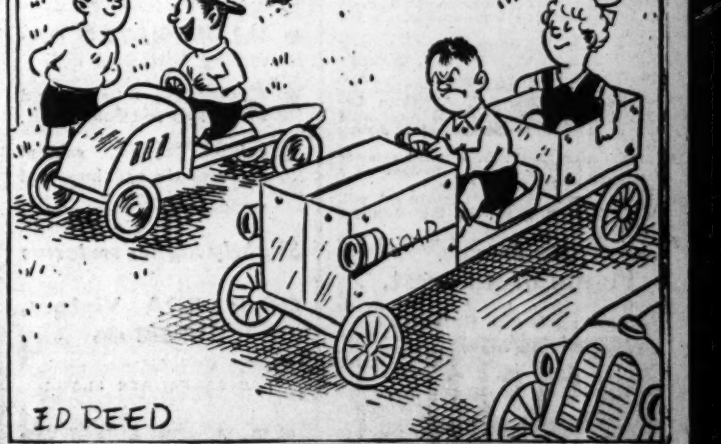

There came, in later years, a political alliance but when the world economic collapse struck the German industries, there came hunger and unemployment and with them the inevitable growth of national Socialism. It is impossible to dissociate Fascism and its growth out of conditions of hunger and no work and no hope.

The wonder is that the nation, made up of minorities with the Czechs having only 40 per cent of the population, has remained together at all. It becomes even more of a wonder when one realizes the nation is tough and well-armed and possessed of one of the finest small armies in Europe and also a great munitions and arms plant.

Germany wants all that plus the grain and the other materials, iron and other ores. She first will try the Trojan horse. Not war.

HIGH COURT RULES ON TAX EXEMPTIONS

Holds Homesteads Open to School Bond Taxes But Not Personal Property.

The state supreme court yesterday ruled that the $2,000 homestead exemption does not exempt property from taxation for school bonds, but the personal property exemption does apply in school bond issues.

The case specifically affected the Red Bud consolidated school district in Gordon county, but law department attaches said it would have a state-wide effect as a criterion for other school districts seeking to issue bonds for school-house construction.

L. A. Campbell raised the question in Gordon superior court by opposing proceedings to validate a $15,000 bond issue voted by the Red Bud district to build a school-house. Campbell contended the homestead and personal property exemptions reduced the taxable value of the district property to less than $100,000. He pointed out that the constitution provides no subdivision of the state cap in indebtedness of more than 7 percent of the assessed valuation of its property.

The court's decision affected only debts acquired after the passage of the exemption act, pointing out previous bonded debts were not at issue. The decision set out that homestead exemption act excepted bonded debts for school purposes, while the personal property exemption act made no exception for such debts.

Don't Say Ducks To Alexander Britt

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., July 20.—(P)—Some people might say that Alexander Britt had a "ducky" time, but as for Britt, he doesn't care much about even roast duck anymore.

Britt's daughters, Margie Ruth and Josephine, owned a couple of ducks. The father decided to let them roam the chicken yard. One duck ran under a barn and was killed by a rat.

Britt produced another. The daughters went away for a two-week visit, admonishing the father to take care of their pets. He found the ducks drowned several days later.

Driving to town for more ducks, Britt ran out of gasoline. When he put in more, the car caught fire and the wiring was burned out.

Finally, the duck keeper acquired two more ducks—but he rounded up the daughters and drove them home to assume the job of caretaking.

2 KILLED, 2 HURT IN BOILER BLAST

Uncle Dies Instantly, and Nephew Hours Later.

LOUISVILLE, Ga., July 20.—(P)—A sawmill boiler explosion near here today claimed its second victim late this afternoon when Ernest Edward Weeks, 40, died at a Sandersville hospital, several hours after the accident which killed his uncle instantly.

The uncle, Richard Haliburton Weeks, 58, caught the full impact of the blast, which injured his 60-year-old brother, Lewis Weeks, and 13-year-old Ernest Weeks Jr. Attaches of the hospital said Ernest Weeks Sr. died from effects of scalds and a fractured skull.

GIRL, 9, IS RESCUED BY YOUTH IN LAKE

Columbus Boy Pulled Out 2 Others in 1936.

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 20.—(P)—Jack Bentley, of Columbus, made his third rescue today by pulling Eloise Cuddady, 9, of Cordele, out of Juniper lake.

The child was swimming with a party of 20 girl bathers. She jumped from an inflated tube as it drifted into deep water. A doctor reported her none the worse from her experience, although weakened by fright and water she had inhaled.

Two years ago Bentley saved two Columbus youths when their boat sank in a lake on the Fort Benning reservation.

QUAKE KILLS 20

Further Tremors Feared in Greece.

ATHENS, July 20.—(P)—Frightened inhabitants were warned today more shocks might be expected to follow a morning earthquake which scattered wreckage across much of ancient Greece.

Incomplete estimates were 20 persons killed and 100 injured in today's shock, the strongest felt in this country in modern times. Twenty miles north of Athens, gaping fissures swallowed houses, but the capital itself suffered no serious damage. Torrential rainfall which followed the earthquake hampered rescue work.

RETURNS INDICATE WHITFIELD IS DRY

County Will Be Fifth in State If First Results Hold Up.

DALTON, Ga., July 20.—(P)—Rural Whitfield county, in extreme northwest Georgia, apparently had become the fifth county to go dry today under the state's local option repeal act.

Ed A. Burch, correspondent for The Atlanta Constitution, said returns from nine out of 13 precincts, including Dalton, gave 565 votes for liquor legalization and 1,375 against. Burch said results from the remaining precincts, all rural, could not change the results.

The city of Dalton went dry, 908 to 448.

Whitfield was the thirty-eighth county to conduct a local option referendum. Thirty-three counties have gone wet, while four, besides Whitfield, remained dry. The dry counties are Telfair (McRae), Johnson (Wrightsville), Harris (Hamilton) and Lamar (Barnesville). There are 159 counties in Georgia.

EMANUEL TO VOTE ON REPEAL JULY 30

SWAINSBORO, Ga., July 20.—Emanuel county will vote July 30 in a local option liquor election, the 38th Georgia county to cast a ballot on this question under the new state law.

Ordinary S. J. Flanders issued the election call today. Previously Emanuel has voted wet in two elections. Of the other Georgia counties voting this year, 33 voted wet and four dry.

TERRELL COUNTY TO VOTE SATURDAY

DAWSON, Ga., July 20.—Terrell county's liquor election originally scheduled to have been held March 30, but delayed due to an injunction, will be held Saturday, July 23, according to Ordinary J. H. Fletcher.

SHOWERS, HIGH OF 88 FORECAST FOR TODAY

Moderate temperatures are expected to prevail today as the weather continues cloudy with occasional showers forecast, the U. S. Weather Bureau said yesterday. Extremes are expected to range between 70 and 88 degrees.

Heavily overcast skies and intermittent rains kept temperatures around normal yesterday, extremes being 70 and 79 degrees. Rainfall in the city Tuesday was reported at .47 of an inch by the weather bureau and .64 of an inch at the Candler airport, while precipitation averaged better than an inch in LaGrange, Griffin, Newnan and Macon.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"O, love, what hours were thine and mine In land of palm and Southern pine..."

Little noticed but vastly important is a concurrent resolution passed by congress last month at the instance of Senator Bankhead. It establishes a joint congressional committee on forestry to study and report before next April upon "the present and prospective situation with respect to the forest land of the United States" with particular reference to protection of both "public and private forest lands from fire, insects and disease" and to measures that may be "necessary and advisable to insure that timber cropping on privately owned forest lands may be conducted as continuous operations, with the productivity of the lands built up against future requirements." This is a study in which the south has a vital and immediate interest. With new uses and industries making more precious all the time this region's forest resources, promising the whole south something if they are properly guarded and employed, the congressional committee deserves every assistance and is made up of men whose composite opinions are likely to be scientifically taken and sanely applied. The senators on the committee are Bankhead, Smith, McAdoo, Pope and McNary. The house members are Fulmer, Doxey, Pierce, Reed and Englebright.

Long before the New Deal there was a congress of the United States and it was passing laws and appointing committees interfering more or less with the affairs and properties of the American people. Some of those who oppose the New Deal today have come to consider every move the government at Washington makes a move in the wrong direction. Yet here is a move in a very good and necessary direction, a move impartially made in the interests of a great natural resource, and it deserves applause from all parties.

"Howard Hughes didn't fly around the world at its maximum circumference, true," writes a Macon, Georgian, "but he flew a lot further than the approximately 15,000 miles with which the newspapers credit him. What they fail to take into account is that he was flying high. He was about two miles above the earth during most of the flight and this means he flew many miles further than the actual distance covered over the ground." More miles, it seems to us, but not many more. About 12½ more, if we remember our arithmetic and that old devil "Pi."

Our teacher taught us that the

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

"THE GREATEST RACE."

Dr. Ryland Knight, in an address before the Atlanta Baptist Ministers Association last Monday morning on "The Contribution of the Jews to Civilization," gave due and fitting appraisal to "the greatest race in the history of the world—the race that has given us religion." He drew attention to the fact that while the Greeks had made a great contribution in giving the world philosophy, the Romans in giving the world military tactics, and other nations and races their distinctive contributions, the Jews had given us moral law and the spiritual concepts which have lived across the centuries.

"The Jews gave us the Bible circumference of a circle is equal to its diameter multiplied by 'Pi,' and that 'Pi' equals 3.1416." If Hughes flew at an altitude of two miles, that means the diameter of the circle he flew was increased by that amount at each end, or four miles. And four times 3.1416 equals 12,566.4 miles. Q. E. D., as they say in France or somewhere.

with its Ten Commandments and its Sermon on the Mount and its Psalms and its Gospels. The Jews gave us the world's first great leaders in economics and political science and religious culture. Where would we turn to find a match for Moses or Joseph or David or Jeremiah or Isaiah or Simon Peter or Paul? And more, the Jews gave us our Saviour," said Dr. Knight.

The world has answered these gifts with persecution. The history of the Jewish people is the story of suffering. From century to century, from nation to nation, the hand of persecution has fallen heavily upon the Jews, until they have come to be known as the oppressed people.

One needs only to go back and read the recorded words of the Son of God to learn anew what His attitude was toward His own people. I pray that the day may be near when the answer of the Christian world to the contributions of the Jews may be voiced in the spirit of Him who said, "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets." (Matthew 7:12.)

LOW LIVING COSTS ENTER RATE FIGHT

Northerners Fail To Insert
Dixie Advertisement Into Records.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 20.—(AP)—Northern interests fighting a southern proposal for lower freight rates made an unsuccessful attempt today to insert into the records a newspaper advertisement claiming lower living and production costs in the south.

The advertisement was published by the southeastern governors' conference a week ago, at the outset of the current Interstate Commerce Commission hearing.

Northern opponents of the southern rate appeal have told the commission the south does not need lower freight rates because it already has the advantage of lower costs.

I. C. C. Examiner Mattingly sustained the objection of Edgar Watkins, of Atlanta, Ga., chief of southern counsel, that the advertisement was immaterial and irrelevant.

"The complainants in this case did not publish the advertisement," Watkins argued. "The southeastern governors have a perfect right to publish what they wish."

Pleads for Proposal.

The advertisement, headed "With Malice Toward None," pleaded for consideration of the south's freight rate proposal, and said, in part:

"We have stated that the year-round moderate climate of this section makes possible lower living costs for better standards of living; less for rent, less for fuel and less for food and clothing for a family. This insures lower capital investments, lower construction costs, lower production costs. 'Analyze the above economies, and you will readily understand why workers in this section enjoy better standards of living at lower costs.'"

Southern shippers are seeking adjustment of freight rates within their territory on a mile-for-mile parity with rates obtaining within northern territory. Their spokesmen have argued such a move would help southern industry develop its northern market.

One northern argument against the proposal has been that southern industries already enjoy natural advantages that make up for any freight rate differential.

Japanese Competition.
A witness at the hearing said today the south's incipient pig iron industry faced a bigger handicap in Japanese competition than in the northbound freight rates it seeks to have reduced.

Even the railroads themselves suffer from the competition of Japanese shippers, Charles Donley, of Pittsburgh, representing the United States Pottery Association, declared.

Donley discussed a Gordon, Ga., pottery concern whose plant is under construction and not yet in operation. This concern, he said, is one of the southern petitioners for lower rail rates.

"What those people in Gordon will have to worry about is not their distribution costs to northern markets," he asserted, "but how they can meet Japanese and Czechoslovakian competition. That's what the northern potteries are concerned about."

WATERFRONT GROUP TO MEET AT CAMP

Aquatic Expert Will Lead
North Georgia Program.

TALLULAH FALLS, Ga., July 20.—The Athens Y. M. C. A. camp, near here, in co-operation with a nation-wide program being sponsored by the American Red Cross, will be host to waterfront directors from 11 north Georgia camps Friday, July 29.

One of the country's foremost aquatic experts, Ramone S. Eaton, of Washington, D. C., will direct the one-day conference, which probably will attract about 35 swimming and life saving instructors from the Athens "Y" camp and the visiting camps. Similar programs are being held this summer in all sections of the United States.

The program will be as follows: 10 o'clock until noon, presentation of advanced canoe technique and the use of the Hawaiian surfboard for recreation and life saving; noon, lunch, and 2 until 4 o'clock, presentation of the new Red Cross swimming and water safety programs with discussion of methods of adaptations to camp schedules and activities.

EFFORT TO SWAY PRESS REVEALED

Senate Committee Evidence Shows Steel Heads Repulsed in Birmingham.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP)—The senate civil liberties committee produced evidence today to show steel manufacturers and others made unsuccessful efforts to influence editorials of newspapers at Birmingham, Ala.

The evidence was in the form of letters which passed between officials of the Republic Steel Corporation, from W. H. Oldham, district manager for Republic, to R. J. Wyso, president of the corporation, said a committee called on Victor Hanson, editor of the Birmingham Age-Herald. But the letter added: "I cannot see that this did any good, however."

Oldham's letter also said he had "cultivated" Jimmy Mills, editor of the Birmingham Post, a Scripps-Howard paper, but that "at one time he is right and the next time he is wrong."

"In other words, he won't stay put," Oldham added.

The discussion of Birmingham newspapers began with a letter from Kenneth D. Mann, executive vice president of a Republic subsidiary, to Wyso, dealing with the desirability of building up Republic's operation in Birmingham to compete with the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company.

Oldham, writing to Wyso a few days later, made his report that a committee had called on Hanson without success. While saying "the Birmingham papers are certainly less radical and less New Deal than they were a little while back," Oldham made plain that this was not because of Republic's activities.

Earlier in the day, the committee inquired into a strike at the Berger Manufacturing Company, Republic Steel subsidiary at Canton, Ohio.

AIR CRASH KILLS 2

Motor Fails During Training Flight.

PITTSBURGH, July 20.—Richard W. (Dick) Coulter, of Greensburg, Pa., former transport pilot and director of Pennsylvania Central Airlines, and Elmer Kerti, student flyer of McKeesport, died today in the crash of an airplane on a training flight near Bettis Airport.

H. E. Andrews, flying instructor at the field, said the motor apparently failed as the ship was banking above farm lands near the airport.

Coulter retired last April as director of the P.C.A. He and his brother, Jack, owned the Central Airlines before it was merged in 1934 with the Pennsylvania Airlines and Transport Corporation.

Sinclair Lewis Grieves Over Waning Culture

COHASSET, Mass., July 20.—(AP)—Sinclair Lewis, Nobel prize novelist who temporarily revamped himself into an actor for the summer tourist trade, was ready tonight to make his professional bow.

"It's beyond all belief that Boston with its tradition of culture and its history in the American theater, should be without a play at this time—or any time—and its people forced to go to Cohasset to see one," said the red-headed author, who will play the lead, beginning July 25, in a dramatic adaptation of his own book, "It Can't Happen Here."

"We talk about being superior to Fascist countries of Europe," continued the man whose stage role will be that of an anti-Fascist Vermont newspaperman, "and we talk about being superior to Communist Russia, but at the same time we have cities like Boston lacking in theater—one of the most definite signs of culture and civilization of the U. S. A."

"Has Cambridge, site of famed Harvard University, given up its traditions also?" asked Yaleman Lewis, who got his first training in histrionics with student players of the Elks.

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 20.—(AP)—Rinaldo B. Page, president of the Star-News, Inc., has purchased the Wilmington, N. C., Star-News, morning and afternoon daily newspapers, from the R. W. Page Corporation.

Page and A. H. Chapman, president of the Page corporation, announced the purchase, effective July 18, in a statement today.

The transaction was announced as a division of the estates of the late Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Page, whose sons and daughters formed the corporation that heretofore published the Wilmington papers and others at Columbus, Ga., and Bradenton, Fla.

Page will continue to publish the Wilmington papers.

FOREST FIRE PERILS 40,000 - ACRE TRACT

2 American Destroyers
Rush To Aid Canadians.

SEATTLE, July 20.—(AP)—Flames of a 40,000-acre forest fire swept toward logging camps in British Columbia tonight in the most destructive of several Pacific northwest blazes.

Inspector Robert Owens, of the British Columbia police, reaching Victoria, B. C., after a tour of the Campbell river, B. C., fire zone, said "it looks as if the fire cannot be held away from the Comox Logging Company's camps."

"The fire is burning over a depth of 18 miles," Owens said, "and is from five to 10 miles wide, sweeping southeast before a stiff north-west wind."

The navy department sent two destroyers to evacuate fighters and residents of beleaguered towns if need be.

COTTON BAGGING USE IS FAVORED BY SEC

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP)—The Surplus Commodities Corporation informed Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, today it was using cotton bags whenever possible to pack commodities purchased to relieve market conditions and distributed through relief agencies.

An aide of Mrs. Caraway said she wrote corporation officials several weeks ago, at the request of Arkansas cotton planters, asking that cotton bags be used for flour purchased by the corporation.

A reply received today, he added, said 1,380,000 barrels of flour were purchased in June, and 1,168,000 barrels were packed in cotton bags for distribution. The letter said also the corporation would try to encourage the use of cotton bags in any future program.

EARLE IN CRACKUP, AIR LICENSE LIFTED

Man Who Taught Him To Fly Grounds Pennsylvania
Governor.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 20.—(AP)—George H. Earle became a "non-flying" governor tonight when his chief of aeronautics lifted the chief executive's flying license for two weeks after a crack-up.

Colonel Camille Vinet, who taught the Governor to fly and later became head of the state aeronautics bureau, grounded the Governor.

A few hours earlier, Earle, flying through fog, had to land on the campus of a college near Philadelphia. He clipped the top of a tree, hopped a fence, smacked a wing into another tree—and emerged with painful bruises.

He promptly called for another plane and flew back to Harrisburg.

Penitent, but grinning, Earle returned to the capital and heard the bad news from Vinet.

"I promised me faithfully he wouldn't go out on a day as soupy as this," moaned Colonel Vinet.

Earle, with 10 hours' solo experience in a straight-winged plane and about 100 hours in the old autogiro he used in campaigning several years ago, started the flight as a practice spin this morning around the Harrisburg state airport.

He circled a few times in his new cabin plane, then suddenly headed east. "It was perfectly clear when I started, but in about 15 minutes I ran into a storm," Earle said later, pacing his room to ward off stiffness in bruised legs and side.

"I made a nice three-point landing, all right, but the grass was wet and I skidded about 185 yards into a tree," Earle said.

Earle was forced down months ago in western Pennsylvania in a heavy storm.

SPONSORIAL STAFF OF S. C. V. IS NAMED

Miss Caroline McCarley, of Atlanta, Included.

AUGUSTA, Ga., July 20.—(AP)—Judge Oswald R. Eve, state commander of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, today announced members of his sponsor staff.

Those selected are Mrs. Oscar McKenzie, of Montezuma, matron of honor; Mrs. Harry Craig, of Augusta, chaperone; Miss Virginia Walton Puse, of Savannah, sponsor; and Misses Virginia Fleming, of Augusta; Caroline McCarley, of Atlanta; and Josephine Jennings, of Milledgeville, maids of honor.

The sponsor staff will attend the forty-third annual convention of the S. C. V., which will be held in Columbia, S. C., from August 30 to September 2 in conjunction with the annual reunion of Confederate veterans, Judge Eve said.

At this meeting, the commander said, a motion will be introduced to broaden the qualifications for membership in the S. C. V.

O'CONNELL IS FIRST IN MONTANA RACE

Representative's Nomination Conceded by Templeton.

HELENA, Mont., July 20.—(AP)—The renomination of Jerry J. O'Connell, Democratic representative from the first Montana district, was conceded today by Payson Templeton, Helena educator and his closest rival for the nomination.

Returns from 327 precincts of 413 gave O'Connell 19,696, Templeton 16,140.

O'Connell, who claimed President Roosevelt instructed him to "defeat Senator Wheeler's machine so he won't be back in 1940," gradually increased his lead as unofficial returns straggled in from yesterday's voting.

The representative asserted in campaign speeches Templeton had the support of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, Democratic leader of the fight against the President's court bill.

The senator insisted he had kept out of the race.

FISHBEIN QUESTIONS U. S. HEALTH PLAN

Likens Proposed Program to Hop Without Proper Equipment.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP)—Dr. Morris Fishbein, of the American Medical Association, questioning the soundness of the administration's proposed $850,000,000 health program, likened it today to an attempt to fly to Ireland without proper equipment.

Asserting "medicine is a different business than flying to Ireland," the editor of the association's Journal suggested in an address to the National Health Conference that it needed to determine whether the program was a "safe map" for charting a future course. "It is not clear that he himself did not regard the program as the answer to the problem of attaining adequate medical care for all and thought it had been prepared without regard for many factors which could not be excluded."

Refers to Unemployed.

"A program planned in the light of conditions in this country in the last 10 years cannot be a far-reaching program planned for a nation which is to go forward during the next 10 years," he said. "It is inconceivable that any nation like the United States can look forward to a future in which there will always be 11,000,000 workers unemployed, and yet the health program planned here is a program planned on the basis of such conditions."

Nevertheless, he asserted the conference had "dramatized" medical needs and that he intended "to go home and to recommend to the American medical profession that they do all they can to meet these immediate and pressing needs without sacrificing the standards of medical care which will give good medical service."

Speech Climaxes Conference.
The medical association editor's speech climaxed a three-day conference here, during which several thousand representatives of organized medicine, the "New Deal" group of physicians within the organization, and government and private organizations interested in medical care into sharp conflict.

Dr. Fishbein declared, however, that he was not attacking "government medicine" and that physicians of the country as represented by the American Medical Association are "willing to co-operate with sound, sane, scientific medical leadership."

E. E. BARTLETT NAMED EXCHANGE CHAIRMAN

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP)—Edward E. Bartlett, Jr., was today elected chairman of the board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange by the votes of 708 members. His candidacy was unopposed.

Bartlett will fill out the unexpired term of 31-year-old William McMartin Jr., who soon after his election as chairman resigned and was appointed to the exchange presidency at annual salary of $48,000.

The new chairman, who will serve without salary, is known in stock exchange circles as a "liberal," although his service as governor extends back to the time the exchange administration was said by critics to be dominated by the so-called "old guard" faction which was eliminated in the drastic internal reorganization early this year.

Italians Shift Brunt of Mechanized Drive to Begis; Madrid Bombed.

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish Front), July 20.—(AP)—Fierce government resistance at Ragudo pass on the Teruel highway to the sea was reported today to have diverted the Spanish Insurgent drive on Viver, Segorbe, Sagunto and Valencia.

Italian troops fighting under Generalissimo Franco's red and gold banner shifted the brunt of their mechanized assault to the Begis sector, five miles west of Viver.

While the center of fighting in the Insurgents' six-day-old drive shifted on that front, an insurgent coastal column struck again near Almenara, about five miles north-east of Sagunto on the Valencia-Barcelona seaboard highway.

Fighting on the Begis-Viver front was marked by intermittent pushes of Italian tank and armored car units behind artillery fire.

Chamberlain disclosed that Herbert von Dirksen, the German ambassador, had called at the foreign office to deny the alleged motives.

Lack of Money Sends 2 Youths To Death in Air

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., July 20.—(AP)—Two 17-year-old youths who apparently had exhausted their funds on a vacation trip to New York, crashed to death today as they attempted to fly back to their Clifton Heights, Pa., home in a driving rain storm.

Nicholas Mandzik, holder of a private pilot's license, was at the controls of the small monoplane, rented with money given him by his mother as a birthday present, when it dived to the runway after rising hardly more than 100 feet after the take off. He lived only a few minutes.

His lifelong friend, Paul Fadden, was dead when field attendants reached the wreckage of the plane.

could question them only through the committee's counsel.

Dr. Morgan said E. L. Chandler, an engineer, was asked by James Lawrence Fly, TVA general counsel, to prepare a memorandum on the separate costs of two systems of dams, one for flood control and one for navigation purposes.

Chandler objected, the witness said, on the grounds that to establish figures for the projects separately and then to add them would give only a "hypothetical figure" on costs.

Fly requested the memorandum be prepared any way. Dr. Morgan said, and added Chandler reported the costs of a system of navigation dams at $144,000,000 and listed flood control projects at $132,000,000.

'Power Costs Nothing.'

These sets of figures, Morgan said, "would tend to indicate the power generated by the dams didn't cost anything except the cost of constructing power houses."

Earlier, deposed chairman testified workers told him they were under orders to discuss the Tennessee Valley Authority's activities only by permission and that he could interview them only by making arrangements through Francis Biddle, counsel for the investigating committee, and in the presence of committee counsel.

During the tempest Dr. Morgan's statements stirred, Representative Jenkins, Republican Ohio, interred Biddle was "in cahoots" with the TVA.

"If that kind of dirty slur comes again, sir," retorted Biddle angrily, "I will resign as counsel at once."

FILM COMPANIES NAMED AS TRUSTS

tures, Inc., Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation; Columbia Pictures Corporation; Universal Corporation, and United Artists Corporation.

Because of their directorships in United Artists, the government charges named Douglas Fairbanks Sr., Mary Pickford, and Charles Chaplin. Other famous names in the list included Joseph M. Schenck, Edgar J. Mannix, Darryl F. Zanuck, and Samuel Goldwyn.

The complaint asserted that although there are enough independent theaters in the country to furnish a basis for substantial competition, these independents were unable to obtain first-run pictures in competition with theaters affiliated with the major companies.

The complaint asked temporary and permanent injunctions against all the defendants.

HAYS SAYS FIRMS
WELCOME SUIT

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP)—Will Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, said tonight the movie industry would welcome the anti-trust suit brought by the government against 33 companies and 132 executives.

"If the present action instituted by the Department of Justice in civil proceedings, clarifies the law applicable to the complex business operations of the motion picture industry," said Hays, "it should promote the further progress of the screen."

BOND IS REFUSED IN DEATH OF WIFE

Order Is Issued To Hold
S. L. Staples.

An order to hold S. L. Staples, of 428 Formwalt street, in Fulton tower without bond in connection with the death of his wife yesterday was issued by the solicitor general's office after a $25,000 bond had been set Tuesday.

Mrs. Staples died Tuesday night at Grady hospital where she was taken July 9 with a fractured skull. Police had arrested Staples on a charge of assault with intent to murder after hearing a story of a quarrel between the two from their seven-year-old daughter, Jackie.

Staples was bound over to Fulton superior court from recorder's court and was indicted by the grand jury Friday on the assault charge.

PEEK INVESTIGATOR QUIZZED BY JURORS

Cobb Body Adjourns Unexpectedly 'Till Tuesday.

The Cobb county grand jury adjourned until Tuesday a short time after investigators in the Peek murders mystery went into the jury room at Marietta late yesterday.

The adjournment came unexpectedly after three days of secret movements by investigators which included transfer of five convicts from the Carroll county prison camp at Carrollton to the Cobb county jail at Marietta.

H. G. Vandiviere, solicitor general of the Blue Ridge circuit, said he "didn't know" if indictments would be returned in the Peek case, adding that he was "not in a position to make a statement."

CITY EMPLOYEES NAMED CONVENTION DELEGATES

Fred K. Stephens, special investigator in the Fulton solicitor general's office, and Kenneth Murrell, of the cost collection department in the superior court clerk's office, yesterday were named as delegates from Local No. 3, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Union, to the national convention here August 29-31.

More than 500 public employees, members of the American Federation of Labor affiliate, will converge upon Atlanta for the annual convention. Stephens is international vice president of the union, while Murrell is president of Chapter No. 2 of the county employees' local.

ed into the area, including cavalry detachments. The Tokyo Nichi Nichi's Manchoukuo correspondents said Russian troops were being transported into Possiet Bay, on the southern tip of Siberian territory below Vladivostok.

Although official quarters maintained a strict silence on details of the reports, indicating merely that it was believed an "amicable settlement" was possible, other reports indicated growing anxiety as to the significance of the dispute.

A report from Hsinking, capital of Manchoukuo, said the Manchoukuo foreign office had ceased negotiations with the Soviet consul-general at Harbin, explaining that "further talking was useless."

Vernacular newspapers described the situation as "gloomy" and said it had not improved in the past 24 hours.

The conference called by Itagaki was attended by the vice-chief of the general staff, Lieutenant General Hayao Tada. No announcement was made as to the details of the discussion.

The foreign office spokesman previously had said Japan was prepared to consider any Russian proposal for a joint commission to study the border situation, although it was made plain no such proposal has been made to date.

CHINESE REPULSE JAPAN'S "BIG PUSH."

SHANGHAI, July 20.—(AP)—Japanese failed today to break Chinese lines for an advance up the Yangtze river toward Hankow, provisional Chinese capital.

Chinese entrenched on the river banks held fast against airplanes and river boats guns attempting to puncture the defenses in a "big push" which had Kiukiang, 135 miles below Hankow, as its immediate objective.

Two Japanese warships shelled Chinese positions at Hukow, at the mouth of Lake Poyang and 16 miles downstream from Kiukiang. Three others attempted to force a passage upstream but were repulsed by land batteries.

F. D. R. LOSES SHARK IN HALF-HOUR TILT

30-Pound Bluejack, However, Squares All.

ABOARD U. S. S. HOUSTON, ENROUTE TO PANAMA, July 20. (AP)—Fish were so plentiful off picturesque Socorro Island today that President Roosevelt and the other fishermen aboard the Houston called it a day after three hours of strenuous work with rod and reel, and the cruiser steamed southward.

For the second time on this vacation jaunt down the Pacific, the President took top honors for catching the biggest fish. It was a bluejack which tipped the scales at over 30 pounds. He even hooked a shark, but lost it when his line parted after a half-hour struggle.

More than 130 fish, averaging from 10 to 20 pounds each, were caught by the President and his five fellow fishermen.

UNION MEN ADVISED TO TAKE WAGE CUT

Rail Chieftain's Plea Resisted
by B. R. T. Head.

CHICAGO, July 20.—(AP)—H. A. Enoch, chairman of the carriers' joint conference committee, told 1,000 representatives of 18 railroad labor unions today they were "slowly killing the goose which lays the golden eggs."

Assailing what he called "a feeling of antagonism for employers" among railroad labor organizations, Enoch reiterated the position of railroad management that there was no alternative to the 15 per cent wage slash proposed for an estimated 900,000 employees of class one carriers.

This Hero Talk Bothers Modest 'Doug' Corrigan

DUBLIN, July 20.—(AP)—This hero business is rapidly turning sour to the taste of Douglas G. (West is East) Corrigan, and he doesn't want anybody to give him an airplane.

In the midst of a busy day in which he had a good many new ideas, received congratulations from important people, and looked over cables offering marriage, movie contracts and what not, the young Californian who flew from New York to Dublin (by mistake) declared:

"I certainly hope they have stopped being Corrigan-mad when I get back to America."

Informed of a report that the Advertising Club of Newark, N. J., was opening a campaign to collect $25,000 to present him a new plane, Corrigan said:

"I hope they don't do any such thing. I don't deserve it at all. I appreciate the spirit in which they are planning it, but this contribution business isn't right in view of the circumstances of my trip."

The flyer, who hopped the Atlantic in a $900 plane and contended all the time that he really meant to go to California but his compass was set wrong, planned to sail for home by the middle of next week.

He will have no trouble getting back. Five steamship lines were begging him to be their guest.

(The latest offer came from the United States Maritime Commission, which plans to take Corrigan and his plane to America in its steamship Lehigh. The U. S. Department of Commerce decided to do nothing about punishing Corrigan for flying the Atlantic without a permit until he gets home.)

During the day, Corrigan bought new clothes—two suits and a spectator sports outfit. The shopping trip was sandwiched in between the hours when he received congratulations or studied over his new ideas.

CORRIGAN WANTED JOB AS PRIVATE PILOT

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP)—

What does Douglas Corrigan really want to do when he comes back home from Ireland?

Behaving most modestly for an international hero, he has been rejecting offers of marriage, money and movie contracts.

All he wants to do is fly, friends at Floyd Bennett field said today—but not on a routine air line route.

Before taking off "for California," Corrigan suggested to one of them that he would like a job as private pilot, perhaps for one of the several big corporations which keep transport planes to ferry their executives around the country.

"Doug, we congratulate you on your unparalleled mistake. May you always be so mistaken in your career."

MULHERIN LICKS GENE GAILLARD; EVERETT WINNER

Sage Tops Dahlbender; Gottesman Downs Cook; Blum Defeats Yates.

By ROY WHITE.

Dan Sage Jr., Dan Gottesman and Arnold Blum, young Macon star, supplied the first upsets of the 21st Georgia amateur golf tournament Wednesday with victories in the Druid Hills course.

Sage eliminated Gene Dahlbender Jr., who Tuesday shot a sub par 71 for second place in the qualifying round, on the 19th green. Gottesman beat Jack Cook, Atlanta amateur champion, 3-2, and Blum, former G. I. A. A. champion, beat Dan Yates, 6-5, in the surprise upsets.

Frank Mulherin, of Augusta, defending his championship, lost the favorites' parade into the second round with a 6-5 victory over Gene Gaillard. Bill Zimmerman, 1935 champion from Augusta, had little trouble in winning, 7-6, over Charles Brumby.

BOWER TOUGH. Alvin Everett, the Rome southpaw, who Tuesday set a new qualifying record with a 70, ran into a tough opponent in Byron Bower, captain of University of Georgia's golf team, and won out on the 19th green.

Other favorites to win were Tommy Barnes, Jennings Gordon, Tom Kennedy, Dr. Julius Hughes, John Grant, Charlie Dannels Jr., Charlie Black Jr., a former winner, Cliff Eley, John Oliver, another former winner, and Bill Healey.

Leading three up at the turn with par figures, Everett began to lose ground early on the back nine. He recovered slightly, but again ran into trouble and lost three of the last four holes. Bower, fighting desperately to win, rammed a 30-foot putt two inches from the cup at 18, only to have the match. Had the ball rolled another two inches, it would have beaten the medalist.

BEATS COOK. Trailing two down at the turn with a 38, Gottesman fired a superb back nine score at Cook and won out 3-2. Gottesman's two under was the best score for the back nine.

Young Blum, who two years ago won the state prep championship, took an early lead over Dan Yates.

Invitation Meets Aid to Growth and Better Scoring in Golf

What is the answer to the increased interest and better scoring in Georgia state golf?

Well, I think it must be credited to the fine invitation tournaments held all over the state.

Naturally, a town the size of Atlanta is going to have more good golfers but not necessarily any better individually or man for man.

Atlanta placed 17 golfers in the championship flight of 32 in the great state tournament now in progress at Druid Hills.

Rome, a much smaller town, placed three. And Rome not only supplied the medalist in Lefty Everett, but also the third low scorer in Jennings Gordon, runner-up in the southern.

It was interesting to note the increased representation by towns in the championship flight. It was not surprising to find Augusta with three players.

But really significant was that there was one representative each from Griffin, Marietta, Dalton, Athens, Macon, Columbus, Valdosta, LaGrange and Newnan.

The spread usually isn't this wide in a state tournament. A few towns usually monopolize the championship flight.

So the invitation tournaments must be credited with the increased interest and also the lower scoring.

The Druid Hills course is in wise responsible for the low scores. It's no easy course. Only three golfers bettered or equaled par in the qualifying round.

And just consider how unusual it is when a fellow who shoots a 77 finds himself faced with a play-off to get in the championship flight.

Ordinarily, a 78 or 79 would land a berth in the top flight. It's a great thing—the increase of interest in golf in Georgia. And the smaller towns, as said, have contributed largely to the growth and improvement in scoring. Better equipment, no doubt, is an aid, too.

INVITATION MEETS.

The invitation meets, which have been attracting more and more entries each year, are held in towns like Newnan, LaGrange, Thomaston, Columbus, Rome, Cedartown, Athens and Radium Springs.

There is a neighborly spirit about these tournaments. Most of the towns patronize the other's tournament. Each town builds up its own favorites and sends them away to the golfing wars. In the invitation meets they get the experience for the bigger events.

In connection with invitation tournaments it might be well

CHARLIE YATES MADE DIRECTOR OF STATE GOLF

All Officers Re-elected; Sea Island Gets 1939 Tournament.

Charlie Yates, British Amateur champion and twice winner of the Georgia Amateur crown, was voted a director of the state association at the annual meeting and election of officers Wednesday night.

All the officers, Fielding Wallace, Augusta, president; Keith Conway, Atlanta, first vice president; Jennings Gordon, Rome, second vice president; Bobby Jones, and Robert Martin, Tate, honorary vice presidents, and Hugh Carter, Atlanta, secretary, were re-elected.

A rising vote of thanks for their fine work last year in leading the association through one of its most successful years, was given the officers just before the election.

The directors are: Seaton Bailey, Griffin; Charlie Black Jr., Hugh Carter Jr., Keith Conway, Dr. Julius Hughes, Tom B. Paine, Pete Peters, Bobby Jones, Ike Osburn and Yates, Atlanta; P. W. Jones, Macon; Morton Bright, Albany; Hatton Lovejoy, LaGrange; James Evans, Thomasville; A. C. Gilham Jr., Fort Benning; DuPont Kivren Sr., Columbus; Alfred Jones, Sea Island Beach; R. H. Martin, Tate; Morgan McNeil, Marietta; Julian Space, Savannah; John Oliver, Valdosta; Julian Roddenbury, Cairo; Fielding Wallace, Augusta; Jennings Gordon, Rome; L. G. Dudley, Athens; Tyre Jones, Canton, and John McKenzie, Montezuma.

Billy McWilliams, twice winner of the title, resigned as a Savannah director. McWilliams has moved his residence to Miami, Fla. This is the first Georgia tournament McWilliams has missed in 10 years.

In a spirited voting between Macon and Sea Island Beach, the latter was awarded the 1939 tournament. Charlie Yates won his first big tournament, the Georgia amateur at Sea Island in 1931.

Sea Island has sought the tournament for several years and was given first preference next year with Macon on the waiting list for 1940.

Dates for the tournament were not set, but most likely will be approximately the same as those of this year.

East Lake To Honor Yates on Saturday

Charlie Yates, Atlanta's British amateur champion, who was singularly honored last night by being named a director of the Georgia Golf Association, will be honored at a testimonial dinner Saturday night at East Lake, his home club.

Only members of the club and invited guests will attend.

Colonel Bob Jones, father of the ex-emperor of golf, and Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution, will be principal speakers for the occasion, in addition to Charlie. McGill will give an "eyewitness account" of Yates' victory in the British amateur.

An elaborate program of entertainment, including a floor show and dancing is being planned. Bill Harris, "champion chairman of them all," who arranged the grand program of reception on Yates' return from England, will be in charge of the entertainment features.

CATCHER TO TAKE CHARGE OF CLUB THIS AFTERNOON

Rumor of Change in Chicago Pilots at Last Materializes.

CHICAGO, July 20.—(P)—Big Charles Leo (Gabby) Hartnett got his chance tonight to manage the Chicago Cubs, the club he has served so brilliantly as a player for the past 16 seasons.

Hartnett, bracketed with baseball's greatest catchers, was named playing boss by Owner Phil K. Wrigley to replace Charlie Grimm, manager of the club since August, 1932, the appointment to become effective tomorrow in a double-header with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Grimm, released outright and without immediate plans, will go back to his farm near St. Louis. He said he hoped to make some connection in the major leagues.

Wrigley said the former first baseman who succeeded Rogers Hornsby as manager in mid-season of 1932, would draw his full salary on a contract which does not expire until December 31. Hartnett has been offered no new contract, Wrigley said, and will finish the year under his present player-coach agreement.

"The decision to change was not a sudden one," the club owner said. "I have been thinking about it for some time. In fact, I have thought about it so much that I have lost sleep, and have almost lost my appetite."

"Charlie Grimm has done a swell job, but I decided that a change would be best for the organization. Grimm gave us everything he had, but the club has not done as well as we felt it should."

"Contrary to a rather general belief," he said, "I am very much interested in the Chicago National League Baseball Club, and this caused me to make a change."

"I had decided a change would be of advantage to the club, and if anything was to be done, it should be done now."

"I believe the man who can do the most for the club is Leo Hartnett."

Hartnett ranked with the great-

Crackers Lose Pair to Hornsby's Hustling Lookouts, 4-1, 3-1

ATLANTA GETS ONLY NINE HITS IN BOTH GAMES

This Is Men's Night; Pat Malone Hurls in Both Tilts.

By JACK TROY.

The Crackers, who had been riding high, suddenly plunged the depths yesterday. They reached a new low in losing both games of a double-header to the Chattanooga Lookouts, 4 to 1 and 3 to 1. Showing absolutely no punch, the Crackers made it easy for the invaders, led by Rogers Hornsby.

Hank Harris, who has yet to lose a game since he has been in the Southern league, had matters pretty much his own way while he lasted in the first game. He might have gone on indefinitely had he not suddenly become ill on the mound and had to leave the game.

Pat (Blubber) Malone, the former Cub, stepped into the breach and took care of matters nicely. Just as he did in the second game when Dick Lananah was removed for a pinch-hitter.

OUTSTANDING

The Crackers had several chances to win in the closing game, but they couldn't take advantage of any of them.

TWO HOMERS.

Home runs by Johnny Gill and Fred Sington, each coming with nobody on, helped the Lookouts defeat the Crackers and Larry Miller in the first game.

Tom Sunkel, making his first appearance in two weeks, went well until the seventh inning of the second game. The Lookouts loaded the bases and Dick West, batting for Lananah, broke up the ball game with a single to right.

The Crackers only got nine hits all afternoon. They secured five off Harris and Malone in the first game and four off Lananah in the second.

Third annual men's night will be observed tonight at the ball park, beginning at 8:30. Men are free and ladies must pay.

Bill Beckman will pitch for the Crackers. Peck Baxner is the likely choice of Rajah Hornsby.

The Lookouts scored in the third inning of the second game. Lane singled and advanced on Lananah's sacrifice. Honeycutt flied to Mauldin. Hitchcock's single to center scored Lane.

With two away in the fourth, Mauldin singled to right. He stole second. And Rose drove him home with the tying run.

The Lookouts scored two in the seventh. Gill singled to right. Alexander bunted and Sunkel threw wild at second. Bloodworth bunted, loading the bases. Lane fanned. West batted for Lananah and singled to right, scoring Gill and Alexander. Honeycutt popped to Peters and Sunkel threw out Hitchcock.

Malone pitched the seventh.

There was no scoring in the first game until the sixth inning. Three dinky infield hits gave the Lookouts a run. Harris beat out a slow roller to short. Honeycutt beat out a bunt. Hitchcock bunted and Harris was forced at third. Miles bounced a slow one over second and Honeycutt scored as Peters fielded the ball and Miles beat the throw to first. Sington hit into a double play.

A terrific blast by Johnny Gill, which cleared the second tier of signs in right in the seventh, gave the Lookouts their second run. Harris apparently was taken sick on the mound and after Hill doubled over Miles' head in the Crackers' half, he was replaced by Malone. Dunn singled to left, scoring Hill.

Harris was credited with the victory, his fifth straight since he has been in the league.

ATLANTAN SOLD TO DODGERS

CHICAGO, July 20.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today purchased John Chambers, right-handed pitcher, from the St. Louis Cardinals for the waiver price of $6,000. Chambers, with their farm club in the American association. He developed a sore arm soon after joining Columbus, however, and has had little chance to show what he can do. Chambers' home is Atlanta.

Veterans Give 'Nooga Old Home Atmosphere

With Crip Pollot, Pat Malone, Dick Bass and Clyde Barfoot as members of the staff, the Chattanooga Lookouts have a good start in forming an "old men's home."

Manager Hornsby is 42 and the combined ages of the above named pitchers will make any one sit up and take notice.

Hornsby told his men yesterday that they were only 58 years old to play and that "we're going to take them all."

Joe Engel, who said "call me Double-Header Engel," sat at the game with Ray Cahill, scout for the St. Louis Browns.

Engel said, "We are just getting ready to breeze in now. Young fellows like Barfoot and Malone are going to help us a lot."

Pitcher Harris' trouble yesterday when he had to leave the game in the seventh was ascribed to the heat. Unused to southern weather, Harris weakened to such an extent that he couldn't go on. He also had made the mistake of eating too much, figuring the games would be rained out, it was said.

and continued steady to win out, 8-5.

Zimmerman, the 1935 winner, had the best score of the first side, a 33, three under and was seven up on Charles Brumby. Zimmerman was dropping putts from all over the greens and won by the largest score of the championship division.

The Dahlbender-Sage match was probably the closest of the day, neither player ever having more than a one-up advantage. They were all square at the turn with one over par.

Only Gottesman, of the winners, was down at the turn, and most of the favorites were within one stroke of par on the outgoing nine.

NINE ATLANTANS LEFT.
Nine Atlantans are still in the championship battle. Augusta has two, Rome two, Valdosta one, Macon one, and Marietta one.

The going will really get tough today and some excellent matches are forecast.

The Zimmerman-Tom Barnes, Hughes-Grant, Everett-Dannals, Mulherin-Sage and John Oliver-Bill Healey, scraps will be well worth watching.

Gottesman and Blum, who supplied the major upset Wednesday, will furnish plenty of action in the lower bracket.

Following the five records Tuesday, the gallery came in with another one Wednesday, in following their favorites, despite an almost steady rain all morning.

The largest first-round gallery in the history of Georgia's golf tournaments.

Every player in the tournament except the defaults will continue to play today in the flight matches. The winners and losers in each division form the flights of 16, and a consolation flight will be provided for the losers today in the championship flight. All others beaten today will be out of the tournament.

DODD COMES BACK.

Bobby Dodd, Georgia Tech's backfield coach, made the most sensational comeback of the day. Playing John Westmoreland in the third division Dodd was three down and three to go when the comeback began. He birdied the 16th, got a par at 17 and another birdie at 18 to square the match.

Dodd won out on the 22nd hole for the longest match of the day.

And speaking of extra-hole matches, there were nine, five in the fifth division, for another new record for state play. Twenty-two other matches ended on the 18th green, with 18 others being defaulted, for the best matches ever to be played in the first round.

Hugh Nunnally made the most spectacular shot of the day. Hugh's third shot going to the 18th green in the shrubbery adjacent to the clubhouse. He played over the swimming pool and several large trees to the edge of the green and carried the match to the 19th green where he beat Edsell Benson, of Athens, in the fifth division.

Ball Park Vendors

Play 'Brains' Today

It may have been the double loss to Chattanooga that brought it on, but anyway the concessionaires and the "brains department" will square off in a ball game at 10 o'clock this morning out at Ponce de Leon park.

Jasper Donaldson will pitch for the "brains," while Paul Sanford will be the rubber for the concessionaires. It will be a game well worth missing.

Opponent Is Sought

For Brown August 1

Virgil Warren II, announced yesterday he was seeking an opponent for Ben Brown here on Monday, August 1, and is trying to obtain one of four nationally known opponents for the Atlanta middleweight. They are Teddy Yaross and Lou Brouillard, former world champion, Tony Fisher and Tony Celi, ranking contenders.

to point out that the Capital City Club is holding one during the week-end of Labor Day.

John Westmoreland is chairman of the committee for the tournament. Golfers participating in the state might well jot down the dates, which are September 3, 4 and 5.

All state players are invited to enjoy a week end of golf on a course kept beautiful by sprinklers. A barbecue dinner complimentary to entrants will be given Saturday night, September 3, at which time a Calcutta pool will be formed.

The second annual Capital City invitation will be handled by Grandpa Howard Beckett, who has served a mere 20 years as pro.

SUCH ENTERTAINMENT.

Dr. Julius Hughes certainly arranged a novel musical entertainment for the state tourney.

The variety is the thing. Homer Knowles plays the organ—you should be there when the organ plays at twilight—Lollie Brannon picks the guitar, and Nu Nu Chastain handles the vibra harp.

It's an unusual combination, but produces something new and attractive in harmony.

MEN'S NIGHT.

Well, men, tonight's the night. If it doesn't rain. And I guess in a case like that the Atlanta baseball club would have a night for the masculine customers later on. The rain, however, seems to be over for the time being.

It's the man, of course, who pays at a baseball game. Ladies have two nights every week when the club plays at home. But only once a year do the men get a break.

And even then it's still the same old seven and six if the spouse insists she can't understand baseball as well as sitting at home listening to the radio account.

It so happens, however, that in the past two men's night programs, mostly men have made up the gathering.

For, you see, the Atlanta club always arranges it so there is a ladies' night following.

It's one of the bright spots of the season—men's night. The Atlanta club is the originator of the idea and, so far as is known, Atlanta is one of the few baseball towns that so honors the male sex.

SHOOTERS LOOK AHEAD.

Georgia trap and skeet shooters are looking forward to the two-day program this week end at Radium Springs.

Floyd Alford Jr., who goes by the name of "Bubber" to his friends, has arranged two such days as he is famous for on Saturday and Sunday.

A goodly number of Atlanta shooters will be there, including Buddy Jones, Dr. LeRoy Childs, Clint Davis, Jack Tway, Clyde King and Harry Harkins.

When the day's firing is done they'll go to the cool pool for swimming or the Skywater lodge for a little chinning. They are enjoyable days—at Radium.

HARTNETT NAMED CUB MANAGER

est catchers of all time and one of the National league's most popular players with athletes and fans alike, was gleeful. Grimm obviously was downcast and said little.

"I am as happy as a kid with a new toy," Hartnett boomed. "I only hope I'm as lucky as a manager as I have been as a ball player. If I am, we should do all right."

Grimm spoke only when he posed, smiling, with Hartnett for photographers.

"I'm glad you are taking it this way, Charlie," Hartnett said. "What the hell," Grimm answered, "there's no other way to take it. That's baseball."

Last season he caught 103 games to tie Ray Chaik, of the Chicago White Sox in catching 100 or more contests for 12 seasons, a major league record. Apparently getting better with age, he led National league catchers in fielding in 1934-35-36-37, and previously headed the circuit in 1925, 1928 and 1930.

The Five 'Kicklighter Girls' Gather At First Real Reunion in 38 Years

Although Sisters Have Met for Short Time During Period, This Is Their First Opportunity To Talk Over Old Times, See Old Friends.

It's reunion week out at 1584 North Morningside drive for five Georgia sisters who are gathered at the residence of Mrs. C. H. May, the youngest of the group.

For the first time in 38 years, the five sisters, known years ago as the "Kicklighter girls," are gathered for one week's reunion to talk over old times, and visit old friends.

In the group are Mrs. S. L. Rivers, of Brunswick; Mrs. John S. Shannon, of McDonough, and Mrs. Virgil C. Cooke, Mrs. Martha Bradford and Mrs. May, all from Atlanta.

They are the daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Spencer C. Kicklighter, prominent figures in the mercantile business at the beginning of the century.

The five girls in the family have been together for an hour or two during the past 38 years, but yesterday with seven days in store for them to "catch up with the years," the five were in a dither over the prospects of a real reunion.

They plan to knit, talk, visit friends, go to shows and fill their date books for the week with all manner of activities.

"We had more formality at parties when we were girls," they said, "and our social affairs, and especially dances were more dignified. No 'Big Apple' and swing music for us. We enjoyed more dignified things in those days."

'Best Man' Justifies His Title By Procuring Forgotten License

By Sally Forth.

ALL was not plain sailing at the wedding last week of Mary Lewis and Dermot Shemwell Jr., of Albany, according to Sarah Lewis, Atlanta cousin of the young couple, who served as bridesmaid at the ceremony.

The church was packed to capacity, it seemed, and the wedding party was just on the verge of entering when the officiating minister casually inquired of the groom if he might glance at the marriage license. At this the flushed and flustered young man started and exclaimed excitedly:

"My goodness, I knew I would forget something—I didn't get one!"

Buddy Milner, of Atlanta, formerly of Albany, who was best man for the groom, waited to hear no more. He jumped into his automobile and sped to the license bureau, but alas—the only man in town who could issue the important document was away on a fishing trip. Meanwhile, the news of the forgotten license was spreading, aisle by aisle, through the church, and it was not long before even those on the first rows were wearing a look of concern over the complications.

It seems that there was one other person in the whole of Albany—a woman—who could issue a license, and she was out riding. Woefully, the best man had turned back to the church, when an idea struck him. He stuck his head from the window of his now slowly moving auto and began the inquiry. In fact, for blocks he asked everyone he passed if he or she knew the whereabouts of that certain Mrs. X on whom the marriage of his pal depended.

Finally, he was informed that she was shopping for groceries at a certain store, which he immediately invaded. He found Mrs. X, rushed her back to the license bureau, obtained the license, hurried back to the church with "the goods," and saved the day.

What a best man!

When Frank McGaughey Jr. was visiting Henry Dickie in Washington recently, he and his host went to see the White House and to catch a glimpse, if possible, of President Roosevelt. When they arrived, the very courteous doorman informed them that the President was in, but that at the moment he was having an important conference—with Miss Shirley Temple, of Hollywood, Cal.

Frank and Henry immediately lost interest in seeing the interior of the White House. They much preferred to view it from the outside, where they would have a better chance of seeing the celebrated Miss Temple as she left the conference.

Finally, the diminutive star did emerge and just as she entered her motor car, Frank, who had had the forethought to carry his camera, snapped a picture of her. What's more, she was gracious enough to turn around and flash the famous Temple smile directly into the camera so he could get another.

With that Frank was so overcome that he dropped his camera. After carefully extracting the film, he took it with fear and trembling to be developed. And would you believe it? Every single snapshot on that roll of film was ruined by the fall except the two of Shirley!

Frank and Henry have decided that they operate under a lucky star indeed!

ACONGENIAL foursome motoring to Highlands, N. C., tomorrow for the week end will include Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Elder and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hastings. On August 1st the congenial sextet will leave for another house party as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elder in Miami, Fla. But this time the vacation is planned especially for the children of the three couples, and the group will be augmented by Ruth and M. H. Elder Jr., Mary Louise and Donald Hastings Jr. and Ned Hastings Jr.

Miss Winston and Mr. Stephens Wed at Athens Church Ceremony

ATHENS, Ga., July 20.—Miss Grace Winston, beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Winston, became the bride of Robert Grier Stephens Jr., of Atlanta, at a brilliant ceremony this afternoon, the nuptials being among outstanding events of the midsummer social season.

The ceremony was performed at the First Presbyterian church with the pastor, Dr. E. L. Hill, officiating at 5:30 o'clock in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends of the young couple assembled from throughout the state. Prior to and during the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented by Mike McDowell, organist, and by Mrs. Thomas J. Smith, of McRae, aunt of the bride, as vocalist.

An artistic arrangement of palms, ferns and other rich greenery formed the decorations in the church. Starting the background of foliage were cathedral candelabra holding white burning tapers, and placed at intervals were floor baskets filled with white gladioli. Pews reserved for members of the two families were marked with clusters of white gladioli tied with white satin ribbons.

The bridesmaids were Richard Winston, brother of the bride; William Tuck, Frazier Moore, of this city; James Swanson and Dudley Reynolds, of Atlanta, and Dr. Charles H. Richardson, of Macon.

Mrs. William C. Rooker, of Atlanta, was matron of honor for her sister, and the bridesmaids were Misses Gene Brooks, and Mary DuPre Eckford, of Athens; Annie Brinkley Hunt, of Thomson and Ida Stephens, of Atlanta, sister of the groom. They were all gowned alike in lovely models of maize lace and net posed over satin of the same shade and featuring deep square necklines and full puffed sleeves. The bodices of the dresses were shirred and fitted, and the full bouffant skirts of floor length extended to form slight trains. The attendants were becoming headresses of tulle to match their gowns and carried cascade bouquets of souvenir roses and yellow and coral gladioli combined with yellow pom pom carnations. The bouquets were tied with yellow lace.

Entering with her father, Ambrose Penn Winston, by whom she was given in marriage the bride was met at the altar by the groom and his father, Dr. Robert G. Stephens, of Atlanta, who acted as best man. The bride was a beautiful figure in her wedding gown of white lace and net posed over white taffeta. The lace bodice was shirred and fitted and

Following the ceremony, the bride and groom left for a wedding trip and upon their return will go to Atlanta to reside where they will be prominent and popular additions of the younger married contingent. The bride traveled in a becoming model of navy blue crepe fashioned with bolero and wide pleated skirt. The dress featured a wide, draped belt of blue and white polka dots with three novelty silver buckles. Her hat was a tri-corn model of navy French felt with matching veil. Her accessories were blue and her flowers were gardenias and lilies of the valley.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—Our flight back to New York was very comfortable and the weather was good all the way until just before we got into Newark. There we had gray skies and a little bumpy weather. James had so many things to do in the morning before we left that he entirely forgot to bring a bottle of milk on the plane.

While you eat little at a time, under the treatment they have been giving him, you take something every hour. So I was glad to get to Chicago, where we went into the restaurant with C. R. Smith and James had a glass of milk while I sipped orange juice.

We then began to consider what James could have for lunch. They brought us the menu of what that would have on the plane and it didn't sound exactly right, so we compromised on canned tomato soup, ice cream, a glass of milk and a piece of Melba toast. This time we did take two bottles of milk with us, thanks to Mr. Smith, who made all the arrangements.

He is so kind about meeting us and doing things for us. We all are so fond of him that I think we feel lost when he doesn't appear at the airport. I was glad all we found necessary on this trip was a little special food!

The restaurant at the airport was crowded and by the time the newspaper photographers had come in and spectators in the airport had each had shots of us with koksas of their own, Jimmy remarked: "It's a bit like eating in a zoo, isn't it?" I have grown entirely heartened about refusing autographs in a crowd, but one small boy looked so appealing that, though I refused to sign for him, I told him to write to me in Washington. That seemed to strike him as such an extraordinary thing to do, I am afraid he will never get around to it.

We reached New York on time and I found it less tiring to do this trip by day than by night. But James was rather weary. After dinner with a friend, and a quiet evening, we proceeded this morning to Hyde Park.

Sad to say, today is a gray day, which threatens rain at any minute, although I am expecting to have a party out-of-doors this afternoon. Luckily I think we can move indoors, if necessary, at short notice.

The grandchildren have just arrived for lunch with me. They look well and I was as glad to see them as if I'd been gone a month.

I found considerable mail to catch up on, but nothing like what one usually has in Washington after one has been away for three days. Word from my husband says that he is delighted to be at last on the restful part of his trip.

On the way home I read the first article in a magazine written by Postmaster General James A. Farley. I suppose that, because I am familiar with the subject, it may be more interesting to me than to others. Yet it might for that very reason have seemed dull and repetitious.

Instead, I felt I was hearing Jim talk and I think he has achieved an easy style which is most engaging. He has also written the article with such fairness and objectivity, where the people with whom he came in contact are concerned, that I think everyone will find it interesting reading.

Bridge Lite

TWO-SUIT FACTOR.

This is the fourth in a series of special articles explaining, in simple language, how to recognize and execute the squeeze.

Before proceeding to take apart the mechanical structure of the squeeze play and put it back together again . . . piece by piece . . . in simple, logical order, the marked similarity of the two following examples . . . where the squeeze is being actually applied . . . should be carefully noted.

North	South	East
S—	S—(7)	S—
H—	H—6 3	H—
D—	D—	D—
C—A J	C—8	C—
West	South	East
S—	S—	S—
H—Q	H—	H—Q 5 4
D—	D—	D—
C—K Q	C—	C—J
South	West	North
S—	S—	S—
H—	H—A K J	H—
D—	D—	D—
C—8 6	C—10	C—

In both examples only one opponent is being squeezed . . . the reason for the term single squeeze.

TWO-SUIT SQUEEZE.

In both cases, the squeezed opponent is placed in the uncomfortable position of trying to protect "busy" cards in two suits. One of the essential elements of the squeeze is that the opponent against whom the squeeze is applied, must be squeezed in two suits as it is manifestly impossible to squeeze in one suit.

In both above examples, the key cards threatening the squeezed opponent with disaster, are contained entirely in one hand. . . (1) Dummy's heart jack and the ace and jack of clubs. . . (2) Declarer's club ten and ace-king-jack of hearts.

SINGLE "THREAT" CARD. In both cases, one of declarer's established cards, which sets the stage for the squeeze, is a single card. (1) Dummy's heart jack over West's queen. (2) Declarer's club 10 over East's jack of clubs.

In every single squeeze there must be two threatening suits . . . one containing one card, generally known as a "threat" card and usually, but not necessarily, a singleton. The second established suit contains two or more "threat" cards, at least one of which is a positive winner. . . (1) Dummy's club ace. (2) Declarer's ace and king of hearts.

NEEDS COMMANDING CARD. One of declarer's squeeze suits will contain only one "threat" card . . . and that card a loser . . . but its very existence compels opponent to retain his one higher-ranking card in that suit as long as declarer's single "threat" card remains unplayed. The second suit must contain two or even more "threat" cards, but the top card of this second suit must necessarily be a certain winner.

It is not always necessary that the two squeeze suits be contained in one hand.

Till tomorrow—

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

KEEP YOUR FIGURE TO HOLD YOUR MAN . . . SAYS DOMESTIC RELATIONS ADVISOR.

It may be only coincidence that a man's so-called dangerous age seems to correspond very closely to that at which his wife lets herself go and loses her girlish figure.

But John J. Anthony, well-known radio advisor on domestic relations, says that it happens too often to be merely coincidence. "Women often forget that a man marries a woman with a lovely figure," declared Mr. Anthony. "He may go for a long time without paying very much attention to the changes, but one day he stands back for a good look and thinks, 'I didn't marry anyone like that! And off he goes.'"

At this point, of course, we women would like to know what about the man and his waistline? It probably never occurs to him that his aldermanic front is quite a change from his football days! But Mr. Anthony may know best, because his conclusions are based on the analysis of thousands of cases over a period of 14 years.

Don't dream about the fine figure you once had, do something about it.

And while it's a man's world, Mr. Anthony insists that, from the beginning, the success of a marriage depends upon the woman. He even has the temerity to add, "It is mainly a woman's fault when she loses her man."

Strangely enough, although this practical psychologist blames overweight as a definite cause of marital difficulty, he thinks it is far worse to have a badly proportioned figure! And there we'll concede that Mr. Anthony is right. Many a man prefers his wife to be pleasingly plump—but he does like her shapely.

Besides helping you to keep your figure, diet and exercise are important from still another standpoint. "They are the means of keeping in excellent physical condition, and no man likes to come home from a hard day at the office and listen to his wife's tale of woe about some minor ailment, or how tired she is," Mr. Anthony observes. Instead of calling attention to your troubles, he advises that you make every possible effort to build up your health. (And what about the man and his nervous, neurotic and phobic tendencies?)

Mr. Anthony's recommendations for a happy marriage are that a woman try as closely as possible to maintain the same radiant health, normal weight and perfect proportions she had as a bride. The smart wife keeps up her tennis game and gets her husband to play with her. There's no better way of settling an argument than by trouncing your partner at a good swift game of tennis. It clears the atmosphere and makes for a smoothly running marriage.

Now, I wouldn't presume to question any of Mr. Anthony's conclusions, since he could and would back them up with statistics, but it does seem to me that he is a bit inclined to the masculine view. The next time I talk to a domestic relations authority, it will be a woman!

BITING DOGS ROUSE POSTMEN
Postmaster Joseph Chargin Jr., of San Jose, Cal., insists something must be done about the problem of mail carriers being bitten by dogs, as the danger is on the increase. In 10 years 23 local carriers were bitten. In 1936 and 1937 there were 10 cases, five each year. One carrier has been bitten six times.

LOW-CALORY DIET REDUCES YOU WHILE YOU TAKE LIFE EASY

"WHY DO I STAY FAT—WORKING SO HARD?"

"Oh!" means Mrs. Stout to Mrs. Slim. "How did you get so slender so quickly? You don't work half as hard as I do—and you eat every bit as much."

"It's all in how you manage your calories," says youthful Mrs. Slim. "That lunch you had today wasn't big, but it was so packed with fattening calories you'd have to work like a dynamo to use them up."

"Did you know if you eat 1,000 calories more than you need every day, you gain two pounds a week?"

Right! Mrs. Stout's lunch wasn't big—1 cup beef hash on 1 slice toast, 1 cup lima beans, 1 slice devil's food cake. But it had 1,050 calories!

Mrs. Slim lunched on beef sandwich, 1-2 large sliced cucumber, 1 slice angel cake. Satisfying, but only 325 calories—her calorie chart told her.

By basing all her meals on tasty, low-calory foods like these, Mrs. Slim's found it easy to lose two pounds a week.

Is such a low calory diet hard to stick to? Not a bit. But watch the tricky little snacks. Two doughnuts have 400 calories, a fudge sundae—400. When you must give in to your sweet tooth, take 3 molasses cookies, only 100 calories; 1-2 cup peach ice cream, 207 calories.

At regular meals, eat enough protective foods—such as eggs, butter and raw salads—for pep and staying power. Soon you have that light-footed feeling.

Start now to get your youthful figure back—with the help of our 40-page booklet, "Change Your Weight for Beauty's Sake." Two weeks' low-calory menus—tasty, easy to adapt to family meals. Calory chart. Exercises for stubborn spots. How to gain.

PLEASANT HOMES
By ELIZABETH M'RAE BOYKIN
A SYSTEMATIC HOUSE-KEEPER.

Emily is one of those women who does everything off her shoulder and manages to keep as fresh as a daisy at the same time. She has four children, is president of the woman's society at the church, keeps up her piano practice and makes a good many of her own clothes. And her house always shines—as is often the case with the busiest of women.

Secretarial Experience. "But I'm no plaster saint," insisted Emily when we asked her for formula. "I just organize things—I get that from secretarial experience before I married. I'm firm about having the children help for their sakes as well as mine. And I have a blackboard in the back hall where I leave assignments and directions, and where they keep a program of their day's activities—with four, it would be a job to keep track otherwise. But I don't ask anything of my husband around the house—all his tinkering are his own hobbies. I like him to feel that home is more like a holiday—not a place where things to do are always stalking him. He gets enough of that at the office. It's different with the children, for I think it's my job to train them to be responsible and orderly. And they don't seem to mind particularly—as it's all a part of their habitual routine."

"As for the kitchen I have that down to a grand system with a pencil and paper as my maid-chef-butterer. I mean I write everything down as I think of it and make my lists before I go. Then I'm not always forgetting things."

"I'm a stickler for marketing just once a week for staples, and I keep lots of dried and canned goods on hand—with midweek shopping for fresh things only."

Last-Minute Preparation. "I have a quick system for preparing meat. I cook up a lot of things at once—lamb for stew, soup stock, ham all boiled and ready to bake—and put them in covered containers in the refrigerator, all ready for the final last-minute preparation. Sometimes I send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Boykin, care The Atlanta Constitution, for her bulletin, 'Planning Your Kitchen.'"
(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

"There, now you see I'm not so smart. I just like to do certain things I couldn't do if I didn't get the basic jobs done efficiently. Because I think a woman's first duty is her home and family, and don't feel free to assume outside responsibility until I've seen to it that the house and the children are started merrily on their way. When I can do that first, I think I'm worth more to them for keeping active in other fields, too."

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD
Problem of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondents invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield in care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I want to say a word about the men of today and I know whereof I speak, for I come in contact with a great many of them. More and more they seem satisfied to loaf and let their wives work for them. I know one husband who enjoys solid comfort, eats good food and takes no thought as to how the bills shall be paid. He's too indifferent to search for work, too lazy to hold a job if it's thrust upon him, yet he raves about woman's invading his domain.

Where is masculine pride and manly strength? How can a man be satisfied to sit in an easy chair, talk about bad breaks and let his wife be the breadwinner? Yet, no matter how worthless he is he expects his wife to be patient and loving, teach their children to respect him as if he were doing his part. I contend this isn't fair to wife or children because they will grow up believing that it's all right for a man to loaf while his wife keeps the wolf from the door.
INDIGNANT WIFE.

Answer: Friend, there have always been lazy, loafing men who didn't feature work, men who got married, had families, without taking responsibility for their support. No doubt under the new economic conditions which brought the fifty-fifty marriage into fashion their number is greatly increased and the face-saving alibis are furnished them, too. Yet we must admit that for every dead-headed husband there are hundreds who work hard, produce and hold their heads up high and handsome.

However, it's perfectly natural for the wife of a no-account to believe that there's no such animal as a prideful self-respecting man. And if she has a friend or two in the same fix, no amount of argument can convince her that the whole race of men shouldn't be tarred, feathered and set fire to.

In the old days the wife who got hold of one of these duds had to go back home to her parents (or some long-suffering relative) and eat the bitter bread of dependence. Today she may go out and find a job that will support her and the children; and papa, too, if she's willing and long suffering.

Automatically this puts the big stick in her hands and unless she's wise, wise, she uses it to whack her husband over the head. This would be bad enough if there were only two of them; but when there are children it's tragic. If she's going to live with her husband she should keep the peace with him for the sake of the family.

No matter how hard she tries a woman cannot make a hero of a husband whom she despises (a woman does despise a man who can't or won't produce), but she can keep his head out of dust and salvage something of his manhood for the benefit of the family by making him believe he's not a total washout.

What say you, gentle reader?

Hollywood continues to be a gold mine for music maesters—the latest to receive a large salary for waving a baton is Jose Iturbi—in "Sweethearts" with Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy. . . "Dust Be My Destiny" will star James Cagney or Pat O'Brien, or both. . . Robert Young and Florence Rice get together again in "Vacation From Love." Their last appearance in "Navy, Blue and Gold," was very successful.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

TRACHEITIS IS LARYNGITIS. BRONCHITIS IS AS BAD.
Medical name for the windpipe is trachea. Upper part of the trachea is the voice-box or larynx. Prominence of the cartilage forming the larynx is commonly known as the Adam's apple. At the lower end the windpipe divides into the bronchi, two tubes leading to the right and left lungs.

Inflammation of the windpipe lining is called tracheitis; inflammation of the upper part of voice box lining is called laryngitis; inflammation of the tubes into which the trachea divides is bronchitis, whether the inflammation is confined to the two main tubes or extends into their smaller divisions going to all parts of the lungs.

Characteristic of acute tracheitis is hoarseness or temporary loss of voice, with much unproductive coughing in the early stage of irritation.

Essential treatment is (a) absolute rest of voice, which means not even the attempt to whisper—this silence is what makes acute laryngitis so dreadful for members of a certain sex; (b) cold, moist compresses on the Adam's apple—if you know more than I do about it, you needn't allow my advice; it's a free country and you neck's your own; (c) begin immediately taking Old Doctor Brady's Footproof Cough Medicine every two hours, as directed in Little Lesson No. 5.

"Call it Cr!" (d) every hour or two inhale for a few minutes the steam of water arising from a pitcher of boiling water or an old coffee pot of boiling water in which a tablespoon of compound tincture of benzoin is stirred.

All of these measures are equally helpful in acute tracheitis or bronchitis. In any case, if you have acute illness, especially if accompanied with chilliness or chills and feverishness, a hot mustard foot bath administered by a nurse or some one who understands how, to the patient in bed, is always beneficial in the early stage. Next best general measure of alleviation is a hot bath before the patient gets into bed. Purpose of either is simply to equalize the circulation, withdraw blood to the surface from the congested areas, not to produce sweating particularly.

Remedial factor of importance commonly overlooked is air-conditioning. Whatever means will increase the amount of water vapor in the air will add materially to the patient's comfort. Excessively dried out, artificially heated air is irritating to the inflamed mucous membrane of larynx, trachea or bronchial tubes.

In my judgment there is no advantage in taking saline or other cathartics or laxatives in the early stage of such illness, except in the presence of unusual complications. From scientific study and from long observation in practice I am convinced that it doesn't matter whether the patient takes milk, soups, weak tea or coffee, lemonade or other fruit juice beverages—hot or cold—as long as plenty of fluid is taken, the patient's individual preference should decide whether it shall be hot or cold.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Liver and Kidney.

At our house lamb's kidneys and calf's liver are favorites. We prefer them rare. Any objection? (M. C.)

Answer—Any kind of meat is harmless if thoroughly cooked. Rare meat is safe if you are certain it contains no parasitic larvae, for example.

Dawson Woman Helps Husband Run Newspaper.
Alfalfa Farmer Is Prosperous. Leather Salesman's Business Good.
—By Jack Spalding III—

Mrs. Clem Rainey, wife of the vice chairman of the State Parole and Pardon Board, leads an active life. In addition to her duties as the wife of a state official, she helps run the Dawson News, which her husband edits. "Mostly," she said, "I sell advertising, and collect. The work isn't particularly hard. I go collecting after government checks have arrived. Though," she added, "I often take turkeys or hams, and sometimes eggs, in return for a year's subscription."

The News is more than 50 years old. It was formerly edited by Judge E. K. Rainey, Clem Rainey's father, who headed the Georgia Prison Board for 22 years. "We still carry his name on our masthead," said Mrs. Rainey.

Also associated with the Dawson News, and according to Mrs. Rainey, "a very smart woman," is Mrs. W. R. Woods, organizer and past president of the Rural Letter Carriers' Auxiliary.

"She can write anything," said Mrs. Rainey, "from an editorial on national affairs to an announcement."

Mrs. Woods remarked that living in a small town and working on a paper is ideal. "You know everybody so well, you know instinctively how to handle every item. The variety of subjects is magnificent. I do a party in one breath; then a death, and then turn around and write an item on crop conditions. I keep my finger on the pulse of Dawson," she remarked.

WELL-STOCKED FARM AT RINGOLD

Jim Clark, of Ringgold, is reputedly the finest alfalfa farmer in Georgia. He has 75 acres planted in alfalfa this year; already has cut two and a half tons per acre from his fields, and has two more cuttings ahead of him. "I feed it all to my stock," he said. "I have 150 head of Hereford cattle; about 60 sheep; several saddle horses; in short about everything you can raise on a farm. And I got more pleasure out of finding a new white-faced calf in my pasture in the morning than anything else I do."

An authority on stock raising, Clark doesn't see much future in it for Georgia as a whole. "You need bluegrass, clover and lime in your soil to raise stock, and there isn't much land like that in Georgia. Ringgold is on the southern edge of the limestone belt, and we aren't very far from the Tennessee line."

Clark raises no cotton at all, and is proud of it. He claims money made from cows is more satisfactory. And he never has to buy manure.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: William Ballard, an engineer successful as an inventor, is worried because his plant and his big San Francisco house are mortgaged to the limit and the bank may foreclose. He complains to his wife, Sarah, whose interest centers in her club work, that he never sees his children except when they want money. Felicity, 24, has just become engaged to Archie Ross, Devereaux Patterson is very attentive to Dora, 22, and Joyce, 18, has just met Paul von Schwein and thinks only of him. Ben is in college. Mrs. Ballard is ready to send out Lissy's wedding invitations when Archie's father suggests that Ballard invest "Felicity" $55,000 in his firm. Ballard explains he cannot do this because of the depression and Ross says Archie will have to go to Scotland before marrying Felicity to see his uncle who has money to invest. He leaves the impression there has always been some sort of understanding that Archie was to marry his uncle's daughter. Just then Dev Patterson leaves on a year's trip around the world. Ballard calls his family together and brusquely, almost flippantly, tells them he has turned everything over to the bank and it will allow him $1,200 a year while settling his affairs. He himself is going to a ranch, La Perdita, near Merriwell, on which the bank foreclosed. It has been turned over to his use, and anybody who cares to may go along. Paul proposes to Joyce. The ranch on a rainy, cheerless day. Their parents are delayed by the illness of the wealthy Cousin Lissy. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT VI

White-faced, uninterested, Lissy languidly joined the family group. They all stared in faintly apprehensive expectation at the man of the house, who was sunk into a leather chair, his elbows spread, his fingertips meeting on his chest. "Well," William Ballard said, looking about the circle through his glasses, "here we all are. The whole point is this, girls and Ben, he said in an unnaturally cheerful tone. "Things have been going badly for me. The game is up—there's nothing more I can do. I'm broke. Everything's gone!"

"It's like a play!" Joyce said in the silence. The Ballards glanced at one another. Ben cleared his throat. "How do you mean everything's gone, Dad?" he asked. "Just that," his father answered, in a light, careless voice. Joyce's heart suddenly stood still with pity for her father. He was never flippant and defiant like this. He must be forcing himself horribly. "I've lost the plant," he said. "I've worked hard all my life; I've failed. That's all there is to it. I've got three daughters and a son; they're complete strangers to me. I've got to tell complete strangers that I can't support them any more—I'm done."

"Dad—" Joyce said nervously, dragging the word out in affectionate, fluttered reproach. "How can you talk so silly?" She went on over to his chair and sat on the arm of it and put her arm about him. "It's true," he said. "Your father is a complete failure. I've done my best. But whatever I've done I've been wrong. At your ages I was supporting myself, but not one of you can support yourselves! It'll be years before anyone of you can. I suppose that's my fault, too."

It'll be years before any-

"Darling, I wouldn't take that truculent angry tone," Mrs. Ballard murmured. "Whatever it is, it isn't so bad as you make it sound! We'll pick up the pieces and begin all over again. I'm sure we needn't have worried about the children; Mother and Dad are still able to keep them from worrying before their days come to worry—"

"That's just it," Joyce's father said, still in the cheerful unsympathetic tone that came so oddly from him. "I think it is their time to worry. I'm done worrying! I'm done supporting people. Let them try their hands at it!"

"Will, we shall get nowhere if you persist in this criticizing tone!" Mrs. Ballard said patiently. "Well, let's get down to cases! The business has been in the red for a year and a half. I've done all I could to float it; there's no money anywhere. Last June I put a second mortgage on this house—that's final there. I talked to my cousin Laura on Saturday; she won't do anything."

"Well, Yesterday, Monday, we had a meeting. The bank takes over this house and the plant, and some odds and ends of property your Mother and I have—the Dumbarton lots, the Capp street houses. They run the whole thing and pay me an allowance. There was a profound silence. Bewildered and slightly affronted, the Ballards looked at one another.

"Well, I don't see why that isn't a very comfortable arrangement, Daddy," Mrs. Ballard said presently. "It means that you have less worry and responsibility—"

"I have no worry nor responsibility at all!" he said unencouragingly, as her voice wavered in some puzzlement. "Good for you! Dodo said timidly. "But what do we do, Dad? Are they going to let us live in the house?"

"They think they can rent this place for 300 a month." "Three hundred a month is something," Sally Ballard said, resolutely optimistic. "I'll slip in and say goodbye to Daddy, darling, at least, it flatters him. I bought a book for you, Dodo; do try to find time to write it in."

In the stricken pause Joyce began unobtrusively to cry. Her father put his hand down and patted her head. "Don't cry, Joyce. There's nothing sad about being young. Let me finish telling you about this while I'm at it. Talking this over at the bank yesterday they told me that they have a lot of ranches all over the state, more than they can handle. There's one down in the San Joaquin valley that's deserted. It was part of an estate; there's been nobody on it for three years, except a caretaker, and he's gone now, or's going. It sounds—pretty bad; the people who were there didn't live as we do. But it has some prunes, some apricots, walnuts—there is a few cows, chickens. They're turning them over to me. If I can make anything of it it'll help clear up my affairs; if I can't there's no harm done. They take over the house, furniture, cars, silver, everything, as soon as they can get an inventory made out. You girls and Mother can take whatever'll go into a trunk. They think they've got a prospective buyer here already."

"Take whatever will go into a trunk and go where?" Mrs. Ballard, startled out of her calm, asked sharply. "Down to the ranch. La Perdita, it's called—it's at Merriwell, down Gilroy way."

"Is it furnished, Will?" "Continued Tomorrow." (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

THE STORY OF RUBBER.
IV—Forest Explosions.
More than 200 kinds of trees, vines and small plants produce latex, the milky juice which provides our rubber. In most cases, however, the rubber yield is not large enough to make it worth while to raise the trees, vines or Malay women looking at strips of crape rubber before shipment.

Best of all rubber trees today, the same as a century or two ago, seems to be the Hevea tree, and I wish to make a few special notes about it today. Most Hevea trees have trunks from one to two feet thick, and are from 30 to 70 feet high. There are some, however, of much greater size. In the Amazon forests some of these trees have a height of from 100 to 125 feet, and trunk three or four feet in diameter.

Next to the latex which travels through the tubes or "veins" in its bark, the most interesting thing about the Hevea tree is the way its seeds behave.

Oaks have acorns which squirrels like to eat. Often the squirrels hide the acorns in holes in the ground, and sometimes they forget to go back to get them. In that way, it is made possible for the acorns to sprout and grow the next season. Squirrels have helped to grow our oak forests.

Other trees use many "tricks" to spread their seeds. Some produce light-weight seeds which are taken from place to place by the wind.

The Hevea tree has exploding seed pods! Just that word "exploding" is yes, that's the right one. Gas gathers in the pod. Then there's a noise, and the pod bursts open.

The pods are about the size of goose eggs, and in each pod there are three seeds. When the seeds are ripe, you might suppose a battle was going on in the forest. Pop-bang! Pop-bang! The seed pods are shooting.

They do shoot! The seeds are hurled to a distance of from 60 to 100 feet. The reason for the popping or shooting is to send the seeds far enough away from the parent tree to give them room to grow.

To grow well, Hevea trees need a good deal of heat but not too much, a good deal of rainfall, some moisture in the air, but not too much. Ceylon and certain parts of the mainland of southern Asia give what is needed. The Malay peninsula has proved an excellent home.

During the past five years, the world output of rubber has been about 850,000 tons per year. Most of it has come from Asia, some from Africa, only a small part from Brazil.

HELP 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

To Flush out Acids and Other Poisonous Waste

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 2 pounds of waste. Frequent or easy passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

As excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the beginning of nagging backache, rheumatic pain, leg pain, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Live Burglar Alarm Crack Down on 'Cop'

Answering a burglar alarm which had been set off in a liquor store at 1010 Peachtree street yesterday, two radio patrolmen dashed into the building with drawn guns and blazing flashlights and discovered another policeman.

Rapid explanations by J. W. Massey, the "burglar" in the case, averted gunfire and possible casualties. Massey, who had been walking that particular beat, found the door of the store unlocked and went in to investigate.

An alarm was automatically turned in. Patrolmen Vernon West and Henry Wilbur, cruising near by, received a radio call and hastened to the scene. They got their man but after carefully considering everything decided to release him.

Daniel, LaGrange; W. B. Willingham Jr., Atlanta; P. C. Knox, Thompson, and Frank Wilson, Atlanta.

Directors will meet at an early date at the call of President Dyess to elect additional officers and directors.

About 30 dealers attended the organization session. In the principal address of the meeting, Dyess explained how home building and ownership had been made "much easier" through the government's loan financing program.

FARM DEPARTMENT CAN'T MEET BILLS

Commissioner Tells Creditors That Fertilizer Fees Are Down.

Commissioner Columbus Roberts informed creditors of the department of agriculture yesterday their claims for $52,056 could not be paid at this time because fertilizer inspection fees had fallen short of anticipations.

The department has 51 creditors with approved claims, J. C. Newton, cashier, said. The inspection fees were incurred before Roberts took office.

Roberts called a meeting of the creditors to explain that the fertilizer revenue was $69,860 less for the first six months of this year than for the same period of 1937, when $291,452 was taken in. Newton told the creditors a $20,000 curtailment in operating costs would be necessary for the department for the next six months in order to keep within current revenue. The egg inspection division, the veterinary and farmers market division, which operate on separate revenues, would not be affected, he said.

Roberts said $32,259.16 had been paid in April on claims against the department and further payment had been intimated for July. He said the drop in fertilizer receipts had made the second payment impossible until further receipts were in hand. The fertilizer revenue is heaviest in the spring.

Cashier Newton said a large part of the claims were for services and material in farmers markets, while others included bills for stationery, fertilizer tag printing and miscellaneous equipment and services.
